GRIEF UNRESTRAINED AT BERNHARDT BIER

Police Unable To Hold Crowds In Check—Million See Cortege Pass—Funeral Plans Changed at Last Moment.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, March 29.—Amidst almost unprecedented scenes of grief and lamentation, Mme. Sarah Bernhardt —"the Divine Sarah"—was buried today. It had been announced that there would be no sermon, no Mass and no music, but at the last minute this program was changed. There was a low Mass in the Church of St. Francis de Sales, which lasted an hour. A funeral chant was sung and an orchestra played "Asa's Death" from Peer Gynt.

The police lines were unable to hold back the enormous crowd which gathered about the church. Persons brushed past the gendarmes and entered the church amidst great confusion. The solemnity of the occasion was marred by the tramping of feet and the scraping of chairs. Men and women crowded close to the catafalque in an effort to see the coffin, which was hidden beneath a mass of flowers.

The cortege, after the church service, passed in front of the Sarah Bernhardt Theatre where it halted for a minute.

Among the wreaths were three from the Lamb's Club, the Players' Club, and the Actors' Equity of New York. Many Americans were among the mourners.

An unconventional touch was introduced in the church service when an usher rapped loudly three times, the signal in French theatres that the curtain is about to be raised. This opened the brief church service. The pall bearers were actors from the Sarah Bernhardt Theatre.

The funeral cortege was more than half a mile long. There were about fifty carriages. The rest of the mourners were on foot.

Four cabinet members represented the government. They were M. Berard, M. Reibel, M. Strauss and M. Pate.

The Paris Midi estimated that 40,000 persons from all parts of the world signed the mourning register in the hallway of Mme. Bernhardt's home.

The streets in the vicinity of Mme. Bernhardt's home and the church had not seen such activity since the armistice celebration. It was estimated that one million persons saw the cortege.

Miss Mary Dugan, who described herself to the police as 25 years of age, of Boston, declared that a valuable sable neckpiece had been stolen from her while she was passing before Mme. Bernhardt's coffin.

The funeral cortege formed shortly before 2 o'clock, owing to delays caused by the vast crowds. It moved at a snail's pace. The coffin was covered with white lilacs and lilies of the valley. Wreaths almost covered the hearse.

The street before the church had been roped off, but a traffic lane was left open and throughout the morning there was a continuous stream of motor cars and taxicabs driving up to the church to leave flowers. The largest floral tribute was a wreath of violets and carnations 12 feet square from the city of Paris.

The weather was sunny and warm. This was partly responsible for the large crowds that swarmed into streets near the church, hoping, out of curiosity, to get a glimpse of the casket and to see the prominent persons who attended the church service.

The church doors were hung with black, the crepe bearing the monogram of the famous actress. The entire interior of the building was in mourning.

Mme. Bernhardt's coffin rested upon an immense catafalque erected in the center of the nave.

Five great flat topped wagons were waiting in front of the church to carry the flowers after the ceremony. According to French custom, the floats conveying the floral tributes travel ahead of the hearse. The mourners walk behind the hearse.

Strict police orders were given to prevent efforts to commercialize the death of Mme. Bernhardt, but they were not successfully enforced. Dozens of hawkers were in the streets near the church, selling postcards with the picture of Mme. Bernhardt, books about her and other souvenirs having an association with the world renowned actress.

Sacha Guitry, playwright, who wrote a play especially for Mme. Bernhardt last autumn when she was stricken with her final illness, proposed that all of the Paris theaters give a benefit performance tonight to erect a monument for Mme. Bernhardt.

Within a day or two lawyers representing Mme. Bernhardt's estate and family and those representing the creditors will meet to attempt to straighten out her affairs. She was heavily in debt at the time of her death.

A Roast Beef Supper.

The Men's Club of St. John's Church is arranging to hold a roast beef supper in the church next Thursday evening. Tickets may be had at Winter's, L. B. Van Wagenen Company's store, or Safford & Scudder. The committee in charge are preparing an exceptionally tempting menu for the event.

Saugerties Saves Daylight.

Daylight saving will be continued in Saugerties again this summer. The village ordinance adopted two years ago, remains effective, as usual this year.

LIQUOR SEIZURE IN ELLENVILLE

Three Arrests For Selling Booze—Canfield and Elting Confer on "Quart Ruling" Which Whittle Explains.

Prohibition headquarters in New York city has announced that Prohibition agents Leap and Kantor, with search warrants, raided two hotels at Ellenville on Wednesday.

At the first hotel at 88 Center street, they arrested Charles Storman, owner, and are said to have seized a quantity of liquor. At the Central Hotel, 139 Canal street, they arrested Max Cohen, proprietor, and Israel Barsky, a waiter. They also raided the soft drink stand of Hugh Higgins, 126 Canal street.

According to morning newspaper reports, Palmer Canfield, Jr., who has just been appointed Prohibition Director for the state of New York, visited Collector of the Port Philip Elting and Special Deputy Collector H. C. Stuart on Wednesday and discussed the new ruling promulgated by Surveyor of the Port Thomas W. Whittle whereby passengers on incoming steamships will be allowed to land with liquor to an amount not exceeding one quart provided such passengers previously have declared it is to be used for medicinal purposes.

Mr. Canfield pointed out that while passengers arriving at the port of New York might be permitted to land with liquor if they showed the liquor was obtained on a doctor's prescription, no one under the prohibition law could legally enter with a quantity of liquor larger than a pint, which a doctor may prescribe for the same patient every ten days.

Afterward Mr. Canfield and Acting Prohibition Director Yellowly explained that they did not intend to interfere with the customs authorities in the latter's interpretation of the quart ruling.

There was no quibbling on the part of Surveyor of the Port Thomas W. Whittle, who issued the ruling allowing a passenger to land with not to exceed one quart, who said that liquor generally comes in quart bottles from abroad. A pint is usually the size of the domestic container, and he had named the quart simply because he wanted to name the container.

While Prohibition officials continued to talk about the ruling being illegal, Mr. Whittle announced that he was not trying to interpret the Volstead act but only to administer it in a commonsense way. The ruling was made to facilitate the work of the 550 inspectors employed at New York whose work at best is more or less irritating to passengers landing from ships who are anxious to go to their homes or hotels. The customs men are not required in every case to follow every letter of the law, which would result in needless delay, endless confusion and an unwarranted amount of annoyance to voyagers.

"The order with reference to the admission of sick passengers with small quantities of liquor was liberally construed," said Surveyor Whittle, "so that the inspector called upon to interpret it could use common sense and handle every individual case without referring such cases to the higher authorities. A passenger might land with a quart bottle half full, though they usually empty the bottle before landing. But suppose a passenger who has been sick started to go ashore with a little more than a pint of liquor left from his voyage. Is it reasonable to demand of him to pour out all in excess of a pint?"

Less than five per cent of the passengers bring liquor with them.

RULING STANDS, SAYS ELTING

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, March 29.—The ruling of Port Supervisor Thomas W. Whittle that incoming ship passengers would be permitted to bring in as much as one quart of whiskey if actually needed for medicine, will stand unless it is declared illegal by the courts, Philip Elting, collector of the port, said Wednesday.

The collector said he did not feel any conflict of authority between the prohibition and customs officials could arise from the order which had been adopted as the most practicable way of handling the incoming "liquor-in-luggage" problems.

"If the prohibition enforcement men want to seize the whiskey after it had passed our inspectors, that is all right," he said.

"We are not attempting to interfere with their authority. They can seize it before the possessor leaves the dock if they want to."

"I can't see any basis for dispute. It is simply a ruling that clarifies the situation in so far as the inspectors are concerned. There have been a number of instances where liquor seized had had to be returned after the possessors proved they were ill and needed it."

Mr. Elting said the amount of whiskey likely to be brought into the country through the order was "negligible."

Tommy Joins His Pal.

Jack Welch and Thomas Delaney drifted into Kingston on Tuesday. The following day Jack was arrested for being drunk and was sent to the county jail for five days. Today his pal, Tommy, who was arrested on the same charge Wednesday evening, joined Jack for the same period of time.

NAVIGATION ON RIVER UNDER WAY

Night Boats of Hudson Navigation Company Start Monday—Saugerties Line Starts Sunday—Catskill Line to Resume Monday—Towing on River.

With the Hudson river clear of ice from Albany to New York navigation is gradually getting under way for the season. The steamer Ida of the Saugerties Evening Line will open navigation between Saugerties and New York Sunday evening leaving Saugerties at 6 o'clock that evening.

Night boats of the Hudson Navigation Company will resume trips between Albany and New York on Monday. The Hudson River Day Line will open the season on May 12.

The steamer Storm King of the Catskill Evening Line left Catskill for New York on Monday where she was placed in dry dock to be overhauled before being placed on the route. The first boat of the line will leave New York for Catskill on Monday.

The first upriver tow of the season from New York arrived here during the night. There were a number of empty barges in the tow consigned to brickyards along the river. The towing season is now under way and it is expected that it will prove a busy one.

Wednesday night there was a heavy wind on the river, but as far as known no damage was reported. In Kingston the wind was accompanied by a drop in the temperature and those who were out of doors that evening found the weather far from agreeable.

CURRENT OFFERINGS AT THE THEATRES

RECORD COLD IN UPSTATE CITIES

Zero Weather in Albany, Central New York Fruit Crops Ruined—Six Inches of New Snow in Some Places.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Glens Falls, N. Y., March 29.—Severe cold weather, the like of which is unknown in these parts at this time of year, has prevailed in this city and environs for 48 hours. Last night the mercury went to five below zero and at 8 o'clock this morning, was three above. Places farther north report ten below last night.

Albany, March 29.—Records of half a century for cold weather at this time of the year were broken this morning when the official thermometer at the local weather bureau registered zero. Reports from rural districts were from two to four below.

Syracuse, N. Y., March 29.—Syracuse and central New York, emerging today from the grip of a record-breaking blizzard and accompanying zero temperature, found itself facing a loss of thousands of dollars from ruined orchards. Fruit bearing trees throughout the district were broken or uprooted and there will be a curtailed fruit harvest this summer and fall as a result.

A temperature of eight degrees below zero, reported at Tully, marked the minimum record for the past 24 hours. It was four below at Onondaga Hill and two below at Liverpool.

Fully six inches of new snow has fallen since the beginning of the week in the vicinity of Malone. The cold snap rarely recalled so late in March had also formed several inches of new ice to the two feet covering nearly all lakes and ponds in the Adirondacks.

All points about Malone reported far below zero temperature last night. At Owl's Head and Mountain View, mercury dropped to as low as 18 below, while other points reported readings of 12 and 15 below.

COLDEST MARCH DAY IN NEW YORK

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, March 29. New York today was in the icy clutch of the coldest March weather on record and a sixty-mile gale made it seem colder.

The thermometer fell to the low level at six o'clock this morning, when it reached nine above zero, a drop of 27 degrees from 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The previous low record for March was 19 degrees, established March 28, 1873.

Northern New York reported snow and the cold wave extended into New England and west into Indiana and Ohio. With the passing of the wind this afternoon, a rising temperature was forecast.

PART OF ROSOFF PLANT DESTROYED BY FIRE

Damage variously reported at from $40,000 to $250,000 was caused by fire Wednesday night which destroyed a section of the Rosoff Sand and Gravel Company's plant at Marlborough. Defective wiring is believed to have started the blaze which was fought by the Marlborough village fire department assisted by a company from Newburgh and one from Milton.

BUSINESS DAY by DAY as the Government sees it

PREPARED BY RALPH F. COUCH

WHEN WILL NEW P. O. BE READY?

Downtown Sub-Station Supposed to Open in New Location on Sunday, but New Location Is Far From Ready—Installing Fixtures Today.

Although the downtown sub-station is supposed to open on Sunday in the new location in the Mansion House, the indications today were that it will be several days later before the new site is ready for occupancy.

The new post-office fixtures were received this morning and were being installed today. There still has to be arrangements made for furnishing heat and light, which have not been done as yet.

After the new site is ready it has to be inspected and approved by a federal post-office inspector before the office is taken over by the department.

The new office when ready will be located on the Strand side of the Mansion House, opposite The Freeman building.

FREIGHT WRECK DAMAGES DEPOT

Shortly after midnight this morning four freight cars loaded with cement jumped the Wallkill Valley tracks while passing the station at New Paltz, piling up against the building and causing a damage to it of several hundred dollars. The four cars were also badly damaged and the bags of cement were strewn along the tracks. No one was injured. The wrecking train from Kingston was hurried to the scene and cleaned up the tracks so that traffic was able to resume after some delay.

QUESTION MITCHELL FURTHER ABOUT "BROADWAY MOTH"

Pecora Again Summons Him To New York.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, March 29.—Authorities today began a review of the entire Dorothy King murder case. All principal witnesses will be recalled and questioned again in Assistant District Attorney Pecora's combing of facts to get to the bottom of motives in the crime.

Philadelphia, March 29.—Summoning of J. Kearsley Mitchell, son-in-law of Edward T. Stotesbury to New York for further questioning Friday regarding his connection with Dorothy Keenan King, the murdered Broadway butterfly, has upset plans of Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell to remain in seclusion at their Rittenhouse Square residence here, it was learned from servants today.

The same precautions of barred and guarded gates closed to all visitors that marked the day of his arrival from Florida, were maintained.

Albany Avenue Baptist Church.

The services leading up to Easter at the Albany Avenue Baptist Church will be occasions of unusual interest and helpfulness. At the prayer and covenant meeting tonight there will be a special musical number and a period of prayer and consecration. At the Good Friday service on Friday evening at half past seven an appropriate message will be given by the pastor, the Rev. A. S. Cole, and an augmented choir will sing. Mr. Elmendorf will also sing a tenor solo. Easter Sunday will be a great rally day for all the church and congregation and a great program has been arranged for both the morning and evening service. A large chorus choir will render the Easter cantata, "Victory," by Wildermere, under the direction of Mrs. Asenath Hyser. And other special features will make these services of exceptional interest.

Has Big Toe Broken.

Kenneth W. Ohley, an employe of the Diamond Mills at Saugerties, had the misfortune to have the big toe on his right foot severely bruised and also broken in three places on Tuesday. Mr. Ohley was assisting in the moving of some machinery at the mill when a heavy iron bar accidentally fell and struck the toe causing the injury. Dr. B. W. Gifford was called and rendered the necessary surgical aid.

MISSING GIRL MARRIED HERE

Miss Ethel Rose of Highland For Whom a Search Was Recently Made Was Married By the Rev. Mr. Moot To Stockwell Lucas of Poughkeepsie.

Announcement of the marriage of Ethel Elizabeth Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rose of Highland, N. Y., to Stockwell Sands Lucas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lucas of 5 Baker street, Poughkeepsie, by the bride's mother, Monday afternoon. According to the announcement the couple were married by the Rev. Mr. Moot, this city, on Tuesday, March 20. They will make their home in Poughkeepsie with the parents of the bridegroom.

This marriage announcement is the culmination of a pretty little romance in which an elopement figured. The two young people disappeared from their homes simultaneously on March 20 and no word of their whereabouts was received by their parents. In fact the parents of the bride were quite alarmed for her safety and called upon the police for aid in locating their daughter. They were satisfied of the safety of their child, however, when they learned that a marriage license had been issued to the missing couple by the town clerk of Highland on the day of their disappearance.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons In This Vicinity.

The funeral of Charles E. Jones, who died suddenly on Saturday last, at his home in Sleightsburgh, was held from the late residence on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the service being conducted by the Rev. Charles G. Ellis, pastor of the Rondout Presbyterian Church. The services were very largely attended and the floral tributes were profuse and beautiful. The casket bearers were fellow employes of the deceased from the Cornell shipyards. The interment was in Montrepose Cemetery where the Rev. Mr. Ellis conducted the committal services.

Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock the funeral of Jane Lewis, who died Sunday last at her home in East Kingston, was held from the late residence and at the East Kingston Methodist Church at 2 o'clock, the Rev. P. N. Chase of this city officiating. The funeral was largely attended by relatives and friends and the floral offerings were profuse. The casket bearers were intimate friends of the family of the deceased. The interment was in Montrepose cemetery, this city, where the Rev. Mr. Chase conducted the committal services.

Word was received in this city this morning of the sudden death of Thomas Clarke at his home, 602 West 184th street, New York city, Wednesday evening. Mr. Clarke was well known in this city and his large circle of friends will deeply mourn his sudden death. He is survived by his widow, who before marriage was Miss Anna Anderson, niece of Mrs. Theresa Hume and Mrs. William Reynolds of No. 8 Crown street and a cousin of Mrs. Valentine Schirick and John Gilbert of this city. The remains will arrive in this city Saturday afternoon on the 2:15 West Shore train. Interment in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Word received in Saugerties Wednesday stated that Captain Ulysses E. Winans had died in Los Angeles, Cal., Monday, March 19, after a lingering illness. Capt. Winans was a former Saugertie'an and a brother of Capt. James K. Winans of Saugerties. The latter and a wife survive. Deceased moved to California from Saugerties. While in Saugerties he owned and operated the steamer Bessie and later the steamer Herman Livingston, both of which plied the Hudson river between Saugerties and Hudson. Capt. Winans was a member of Ulster Lodge, No. 155, F. & A. M., William H. Raymond Lodge, No. 59, I. O. O. F., and North American Lodge, No. 115, Knights of Pythias, all of Saugerties.

Mrs. Addison Magee died very suddenly at her home near the railroad bridge above Malden, about 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening and her death is a great shock to her family and friends. Mrs. Magee was sitting in a chair when she expired. She had been ill of late but the past few weeks had been improving and able to be out. She was in the 44th year of her age. Besides a husband, two daughters, Catherine and Jeannette, a baby five months old, and one son, George, a student in Rutgers College, she is survived by a mother, Mrs. Edgar P. Simmon, three sisters, Mrs. Frederick Snyder of Washington avenue, Saugerties, Mrs. J. J. Pulis and Mrs. F. W. Thompson of Jersey City, and one brother, Edward B. Simmon of Bearsville. Mrs. Magee was a woman highly respected and beloved, a very active member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, West Camp, and organist there for many years. She was also a member of Asbury Grange.

Funeral services for Hugo V. Lange, of the Hotel Cadillac, 157 West Forty-third street, New York, who died Thursday, were held Sunday at the Funeral Church, Broadway and Sixty-sixth street, New York, by Fessler Lodge, F. & A. M. Mr. Lange was until January 1 head of the wholesale grocery firm of Meyer & Lange, 431 Greenwich street, New York. At that time he retired and turned the management of the firm over to employes who had become stockholders. The Metropolitan Opera Quartet and Paul Raymond and Anna Byrd of the Metropolitan Opera Company, took part in the services. Mr. Lange was a brother of Mrs. E. Von Munchow of Bloomington. He was a bachelor, 63 years old and had been in business since 1886. Death was caused by cancer of the throat. Mr. Lange bequeathed $500,000 to his secretary and assistant of more than thirty years' service.

Mrs. Kate Carpenter Russell, aged 82 years, died at her home in Poughkeepsie on Tuesday. She had been ill only since Thursday, and death was caused by her extreme age. Prior to her last illness her health had been good. Mrs. Russell was born in Ellenville and had lived there all her life until about a year ago, when she went to Poughkeepsie to make her home. She was the widow of James W. Russell, who died about twenty-five years ago, and leaves three sons, one daughter and two grandchildren. They are James W. Russell, Jr., of Johnstown, Pa., George C. Russell of Poughkeepsie, Benjamin Russell of Ellenville, and Miss Jane C. Russell of Norwich, Conn. The grandchildren are Kenneth Russell of Poughkeepsie and Catherine Russell of Ellenville. Funeral services were held in Ellenville on Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock and burial was there.

W. S. STATION TO BE PAINTED

Several weeks ago the Chamber of Commerce took up the matter of painting the West Shore railroad station here with the New York Central, which operates the railroad. As a result, presumably, workmen in the employ of the railroad are busy today getting the station ready to be painted both inside and out. The station has not been painted in years. The improvement will be welcomed by the residents of the city.

PLATTEKILL HAS DESTRUCTIVE FIRE

Fire of unknown origin destroyed the dwelling house, store of general merchandise and all adjoining buildings of Henry P. Blace at Plattekill, Tuesday afternoon. The barn on George Nabor's place, next to Blace's, was also consumed by the fire. Mr. Nabor's house was on fire different times, but was saved from destruction by the untiring efforts of the neighbors.

ALL BOYS INVITED TO "Y" FRIDAY

In cooperation with the various churches of the city, the physical department committee of the Y. M. C. A. has decided to close the gymnasium of the building all day Friday. The baths will be open as usual as will the other parts of the building, but there will be no work whatsoever in the gymnasium.

On Friday night, there will be a big meeting for all the boys in the city. A special program has been arranged with numbers by a double quartet and a six piece orchestra. Eighty-three slides will be shown also. It is expected that there will be a speaker from New Jersey to give a brief address. The entertainment will start at 8 sharp. All boys in the city who are over twelve years of age are cordially invited to attend.

SERVICES AT REFORMED CHURCH OF THE COMFORTER

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered this evening at 7:30. Those who wish to join on confession are requested to meet with the pastor and elders in the chapel at 7 o'clock. The ordinance of baptism will also be administered. It is hoped that a very large number of the members of the church will join in this communion service.

On Friday evening there will be a Good Friday service with sermon on "Christ's Supreme Sacrifice."

Easter Sunday morning the pastor will preach an appropriate Easter sermon and the large chorus of some twenty voices will render some fine Easter music. There will be an opportunity for any who wish to join the church. Miss Maud Weaver will sing a solo. In the evening the choir will give the beautiful cantata, "The Resurrection Story." Mrs. J. Lewis Dougherty will assist the choir and sing the offertory solo.

Firing in Dublin.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Dublin, March 29.—Heavy firing was in progress throughout Dublin during most of the night, but no casualties were reported. The shooting began at 1:30 o'clock when irregulars attacked the Free State military posts. Armored cars swept through the streets firing blasts from their machine guns to dislodge snipers.

THE OFFICE CAT

Just Like That.

"Why should I kiss you," Esther asked,
He answered, "I don't know."
Becoming mad
She told the lad
Exactly where to go.

The Wolm Toins.

A Kingston man, after waiting all day for his wife to say "What day is this?" telephoned her late in the afternoon and reminded her that it was their fifth wedding anniversary.

Many a groom puts off the wedding until his father can afford it.

Money talks, but if Henry Ford could carry out his ideas it would rattle.

Married It.

Jones: What did you do with that old typewriter of yours?
Brown: Oh, I married her.

And What You Might Call Some Cow.

From an Illinois small city daily: Harry Mahan has bought a cow and is supplying his neighbors with butter and fresh eggs.

Found in a Missouri exchange: "Missouri stands at the head in mule raising which is, in fact the only safe place to stand."

A woman rushed up to the ticket office in the station the other day and demanded a round trip ticket quick. "Where to?" inquired the agent. "Back here—where do you suppose?" shrieked the woman.

Efficiency Running Amuck.

A Chicago efficiency maniac posted a notice in his works reading "Do It Now." Within twenty-four hours the cashier bolted with the contents of the office safe, his favorite stenographer ran off with his oldest son, the office boy threw the ink bottle into the electric fan, and the whole mechanical crew went on strike for more wages and a six hour day. He is thinking of getting a new office motto but he can't find a comfortable one.

A Karolina Kalamity.

In North Karolina a Kluxer has been kompelled to break rocks on the highways for a period of one Kalendar year, for trying his Klannishness on a citizen who kalled the bluff and tore off the hood, Klack, klack.

And Echo Answers, "Who?"

Breathes there a man with soul so dead,
Who never to some one hath said—
"By gilly—this little old bus of mine is some car. You know that big hill? Well, sir, you just oughta seen me—" etc. etc.

According to their temper men are sharpened or broken on the grinding wheel of adversity.

WEST SAUGERTIES.

West Saugerties, March 22.—George Teetsel and Milton Hommel are doing some carpenter work for Mrs. Pellesier.

Mrs. Haas of Catskill, spent a few days last week at the home of her son, Mr. Rogers.

Fred Cordes has pulled down his blacksmith shop preparatory to putting up a garage.

Mr. Rogers has moved one of the old buildings back of the house for a wood house, and there is some talk of moving the store to the opposite side of the road, which will be an improvement.

Mrs. Pellesier and daughter Antoinette of New York city, are spending a week at their home here.

Ed Van der Hoff, William J. O'Brien and another young man from the police camp in Platte Clove, spent Sunday with Fred Cole and family.

Mrs. Watson and children are spending the vacation week at their home in the lower part of the village.

Mrs. Nepitoda called on Mrs. Pellisier on Sunday.

Mrs. John Cole and children are guests of her sister, Mrs. Andrew Shrader in Kingston this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers have gone to Verona, N. J., for a visit with his brother Bert.

Miss Rill, our teacher, is visiting a cousin in Poughkeepsie during this week.

The Doctor

THE Doctor gives so much time to others he has little for himself.

His interests are centered far from the business field and held strongly by questions of life and death.

His training is professional: the very circumstances that make the career of a successful doctor weigh heavily against his success in an independent financial operation.

His best interests and his patients demand that his mind be free from such worries.

Sound bonds temper or lessen the worries of a professional life and permit one to look to the future with assurance.

We offer such bonds which may be purchased on payments as low as $50 per month. Write today for our free booklet, "How to Perpetuate Your Income," which will explain fully. Ask for

ZONING SPEAKER TOMORROW NIGHT

Those to whom the zoning proposition sounds good but who take it for granted there must be some iniquitous colored gentleman in the woodpile that would make it objectionable here can get expert information and perhaps have all doubts dispelled at the open meeting of the Chamber of Commerce at the Eagle Hotel at 6:30 o'clock Friday evening, March 30.

Campbell Scott, president of the Technical Advisory Corporation of New York, will speak on "City Planning and Zoning for Kingston." The Advisory Corporation is one of the foremost companies in the country doing city planning work and its president necessarily is one of the best informed men on zoning, that being a subject receiving very attentive consideration in most cities of the United States. He will give the benefit of his experience and information and apply it to conditions as they exist here.

All property owners and those interested in the right growth and development of Kingston are cordially invited. The dinner will cost $1 per plate. It is, of course, desirable to know how many will attend and to that end reservations should be made in advance. Telephone reservations may be made by calling the Chamber of Commerce, 504, and tickets will be on sale at the hotel the evening of the dinner.

STRIKING FOR SPORTS WEAR

Gay golf sweaters worn with simple plaited skirts promise to be a smart combination for all sports wear. This sweater is of silk and wool mohair with a jacquard design and the accordion plaited skirt is of white wool jersey.

SOME WAYS TO USE RIBBONS

Interesting Accessories May Be Arranged for Personal Decoration and for the Home.

Very beautiful chaise longue covers can be made of taffeta with ribbon ruffles in pastel colorings and garlands of ribbon roses to beautiful them. Many of these chaise longue covers have pillows to match.

The vogue for handkerchiefs for head bands and neckpieces is current. Many people can make very attractive neckpieces by edging plain silk handkerchiefs with bright ribbons in floral effects—a rival to the bandanna.

If you want to make a very simple bandeau, take metallic or soft messaline ribbon and twist it as you would a chain-stitch, until a bandeau of the required length is done. This may be finished at each end with ribbon flowers.

There are so many new and wonderful wrist ribbons that a woman can have a different one for each gown. There are metallic ribbons for dress wear, and plain striped bands for tailored.

Four-cornered waste baskets, made of ribbon in the same colors as the interior decoration of the bedroom, are easily made. The baskets are lined in a contrasting color, and ribbons placed in vertical or horizontal bands around the basket, and bound at the top and edges with gold ribbon or metal galloon. Front of basket can be trimmed with a spray of ribbon flowers.

Instead of a train, some of the dancing frocks for young girls now merely utilize the ends of wide ribbon girdles. These ends, weighed perhaps with a nosegay of satin flowers, are allowed to trail on the floor.

WILL BEAUTIFY WHITE HAIR

Lemon Juice Recommended for Bleaching Out the Yellow; Indigo Blue Used in Rinsing.

To remove the yellow tinge from white hair and give it that white purity of color which is so becoming to the face is not a difficult matter, writes a correspondent. All that is necessary is to pare off the rind from a lemon, squeeze the juice into a cup and fill the cup with boiling water. When it is lukewarm saturate the hair and scalp with this mixture. Tie up the head in a towel for a quarter of an hour to give time for the bleaching out of the yellow. Care must be taken that none of the rind of the lemon is in the cup, as this will turn the hair yellow. Afterward wash the hair with a pure soap liquid and massage the scalp with the fingers for about ten minutes. Then rinse the hair thoroughly with warm water, and to the last rinsing water, warm, add a very little indigo blue. This will give the hair a beautiful silvery appearance.

POUCH HANDBAGS FOR SPRING

Silk to Be Favorite Material for Popular Accessory; Filigree Frame of Gold and Silver.

Manufacturers of handbags are making a big play on those of silk for spring in the small or pouch style. Filigree frames in green gold and silver finish metals are favored for this type of bag, while the fabrics include moire plain or satin stripe, and canton crepe. Tapestry effects in different shades are also offered. Beaded decorations are said to be coming back, and manufacturers are producing moire and paisley bags with cut steel and other beaded taffetas accomplished.

ANOTHER SMITH FALLACY.

The control of the state department of agriculture is the ambition of the Democrats and for the purpose of strengthening the up-state Democratic organization. The reason always assigned by the Democrats in attempting to obtain possession of this bureau is that they want to take it out of politics. The object generally accepted, however, is that they want it for just the reverse. Senator Lusk, in opposing the Strauss bill to abolish the department of farms and markets, gave one or two facts which prove that, instead of taking the department out of politics, the bill would put the bureau into an almost unbreakable grip of politicians.

Senator Lusk said that at present there are two state departments, and two only, which are out of politics. One is the education department with the Board of Regents, and the other is the department of farms and markets with the council of farms and markets. The Strauss bill, he said, is a glaring effort to take one of these two departments and put it into politics. Incidentally, he showed where the Governor was in error relative to the reorganization of other state departments, having recommended the abolishment of some that had been abolished years ago.

Senator Lusk gave a brief resume of the agricultural department, emphasizing the progress made in 1922, when the department of farms and markets and department of agriculture were combined into one smooth working organization, the result of which has been a reduction in the number of employes and a reduction in administrative cost, but with an increase in efficiency. There is room for further improvement, which can more easily be made under the present form of organization than by destroying and rebuilding.

THERE MUST BE A LIMIT.

The distinguishing difference between a digging archeologist and an ordinary grave robber is that the former is apt to wear spectacles and usually delays his operations until a thousand or more years have elapsed after the burial. The ordinary grave robber is despised and denounced as a venal creature who desecrates a tomb for a contemptibly small pecuniary gain. The archeologist, on the other hand, is respected and even landed for his labors in the interests of history and science. It seems, however, that there are exceptions to the rule in the latter case. We read that both in this country and in Europe there has been voiced condemnation of the "violation" and "desecration" of the "sanctity of the grave" of old Pharaoh Tut-ankh-Amen, whose tomb in the valley of the Nile was recently opened after the lapse of more than 3,000 years. One American editor, for example, has demanded to know by what right the "home" carefully prepared by a living man for his occupancy after death is emptied of the treasures which that man thought needful for his eternal well-being.

The answer is simple enough. Even putting aside the interests of history and science as unimportant, it remains to be said that if respect for graves had continued indefinitely and their markings had been maintained among all peoples from the beginning there would not now be a foot of land on our planet upon which mankind would feel free to tread. A limit to the sanctity of graves is demanded by very physical necessity, though precisely what the limit of time should be is obviously open to debate. Only in Egypt and China can be found any graves thirty centuries old, and there only because of physical or sentimental conditions not generally obtaining throughout the world.

NEW WEALTH IN PROSPECT.

It is reported from London that sugar and alcohol can be produced in large quantities from the nipa palm, which grows extensively not only in British Borneo but throughout the Oriental tropics, including the Philippines. The promise held out by the laboratory experiments in British Borneo is supported by the fact that sugar has long been extracted from other palms, particularly in India, where the primitive process has never been developed. It is stated that the palm of India can produce about eight times as much sugar to the tree as does the American sugar maple, that the far more fruitful nipa palm of British Borneo can yield more than a ton of sugar a year to the acre in addition to 200 gallons of alcohol, and that the sugar alone might be found profitable with the alcohol as a bonus.

The new discovery is regarded as the more gratifying because the nipa palm grows only on swampy land of little or no use for other purposes. Abundant alcohol is wanted as a liquid fuel to supplement petroleum, and it is the more desirable because its possibilities of production can never fail. The difficulty is to produce it cheaply enough on land that will grow other crops profitably, and the prospect of abundant production on otherwise useless tropical swamp lands is a matter of great importance. Alcohol from the nipa palm is welcomed as "stored sunshine that may yield heat and power in bleak northern lands." This discovery suggests that the potential wealth of tropic forests is enormous and as yet little known. The day may come when a great share of the vast energy of the sun beating down on tropical jungles will not as now go to waste but be converted into wealth for all nations.

What do you want to know about Nature Subjects? Send any questions of general interest to the Nature Notes Department of this paper, enclosing self-addressed and stamped envelope for reply.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. Do people eat cuttlefish? I thought it was something to give canaries?

2. We have had quite a lot of crows about the place, acting queerly and some have died. They don't seem to know what they are doing, and pay almost no attention when you come up to them. What ails them?

3. Can a woodchuck be kept as a pet, and if so, how?

Answers In Tomorrow's Nature Notes.

Answers to Previous Questions.

1. Is it all right to put little turtles in the goldfish bowl?

No, they need a broad shallow basin of their own, with stones in the middle to climb on and dry their shells. Unless they get a chance to dry out now and then, the shells grow soft and the turtle sickens. You can combine several kinds of baby turtle, even snappers while they are very young.

2. What makes dogs grab things around the house and run off with them?

This trick—which is observed in some of the wild creatures also, in a little different way—is accounted for by some students of animal psychology on the ground of being an instinct to experiment with new objects, and also the instinct of acquistion, or collecting property. (They say this is practically the same instinct that makes humans "collect" things.) The animal gets a certain amount of experience in worrying and playing with quarry, and the dog shows plainly his instinct of ownership if you try to remove his stolen treasure.

3. How long does it take a chimney swift to build its nest?

Probably about three weeks, depending somewhat on weather. The nest is made by sticking together small twigs against the inside chimney wall, the "stickum" being saliva from the bird's own mouth. As only a little of this fluid is produced each day, building goes slowly, and allows each addition to get well set before new twigs are added. Damp weather delays drying, and may hold up building.

DR. O'MEARA TALKS TO K. H. S. PUPILS

Says Prevention of a Disease Is Better Than Cure, Cites Panama Canal as Typical Example—The Life of a Physician.

Dr. Mark O'Meara presented the case of medicine to the high school students Wednesday. This is the second of a series of talks on professions. Dr. O'Meara spoke of the great opportunities in life for the skilled physician. The science or profession dates back to the time of the Egyptians. It is believed that even as far back as the fifth century before Christ, there was some knowledge of medicine. The real beginning of modern medicine, however, was in the time of Hippocrates, the Greek, many of whose formulas are still in use. But science has made the field bigger, it has made the profession greater and more extensive and beneficial. The great work that has been and is being done in preventive medicine offers unlimited opportunity for those who are interested in such work. This part is really more important than the curative branch. Prevention of a disease is better than cure, so this science is one of the most important parts of modern medicine. The case of the Panama Canal is a typical example of the effectiveness of preventive measures. Failure had been the fruits of labor of those countries who had tried to build it with disease everywhere there, but when the United States government took it over, the first thing done was the elimination of the mosquito, the germ carrier, and today the place that was once feared as a breeding place of malaria and yellow fever has been made a resort, while the great engineering feat that was so long looked forward to has become a reality.

This field, however, is not the only one offering opportunities in medicine. The regular practice is one that serves the people as well as any other profession, and in some ways really is more important for them than other professions. In some rural districts there is a severe shortage of doctors, and the chances for someone to do good and make good in these places are numerous.

The life of a physician is not one that can really be called enjoyable. He is a servant of the people any time they may want him. His time, if he is a conscientious attendant, is never his own, his business obligations often breaking up his pleasant evening, or calling him out early in the morning or late at night. The field is one of service, and only those who are interested in medicine and who really want to serve the people to a great extent should even consider going into that line for a life work.

FRECKLES

March Worst Month for this Trouble—How to Remove Easily.

There's a reason why nearly everybody freckles in March, but happily there is also a remedy for these ugly blemishes, and no one need stay freckled.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength, from your druggist and apply a little of it night and morning, and in a few days you should see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the light ones have vanished entirely. Now is the time to rid yourself of freckles, for if not removed now they will stay all summer, and spoil an otherwise beautiful complexion. Your money back if Othine fails.

MOTHER GRAY'S POWDERS BENEFIT MANY CHILDREN

Thousands of mothers have found Mother Gray's Sweet Powders an excellent remedy for children complaining of Headache, Colds, Feverishness, Stomach Troubles and other irregularities from which children suffer these days and excellent results are accomplished by its use. Used and recommended by Mothers for over 30 years. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Trial Package FREE. Address Mother Gray Co., LeRoy, N. Y.

Children gain Strength and Weight with

LINONINE

Thin, delicate and sickly children soon regain better health, increase in weight and get back their healthy color when given Linonine. This pure, safe emulsion of flax seed oil puts an end to nasty coughing, restlessness, and troubled sleep. It creates appetite, builds new strength and provides the nourishment necessary to fight off the weakening coughs and colds that keep the child half sick all the time. Linonine is pleasant to take—as sweet as cream—easily assimilated and does not upset the stomach. Try one bottle and you will see an improvement.

CARNARVON IS CRITICALLY ILL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Cairo, Egypt, March 29.—The condition of Lord Carnarvon, British explorer who discovered the tomb of Tut-ankh-Amen, is critical, it was announced today. He is suffering from acute poisoning, caused by the bite of an insect at Tut-ankh-Amen's tomb. The infection began in the face but has now extended downward past the shoulders and throat to the lungs. Among superstitious Egyptians there is much talk that "a curse has fallen upon Lord Carnarvon because he disturbed a tomb of the Pharaohs after they had received pledges from the ancient gods that their bodies would rest in peace."

NANTASKET BEACH HAS GREAT FIRE

Boston's Fine Seaside Resort Loses Ninety Buildings in Blaze Fanned by Zero Gale.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Boston, March 29.—About a mile of Nantasket Beach, a great summer resort for New England people, was laid waste last night and early today by the most disastrous fire in the history of the beach. About ninety houses were destroyed, seven persons injured and about 150 made homeless by the conflagration. Damage is estimated at $1,000,000.

The flames were visible for miles and drew many spectators despite the cold. The flames were fanned by a northwest wind accompanied by intense cold. Low water pressure also handicapped the firemen. Aid was summoned from Boston and other places.

The flames started in the palm gardens at Paragon Park and quickly spread. Infantry from Fort Revere, state constabulary and a detail of metropolitan police were rushed to the scene and assisted in handling the large crowds and caring for the homeless. The Salvation Army furnished coffee for the firemen and the homeless.

None of the big hotels nor the five steamships of the Nantasket Beach Line were damaged. About 50 men, women and children with all their belongings lost, were cared for at the rectory of St. Mary's of the Assumption Church. The police station was completely destroyed.

POWER FOR GOOD

Writer Pays Tribute to Irish Schoolmaster.

Has Always Ruled by Love, and Many Men and Women Rise Up to Call Him Blessed.

We often wondered that Thady Sheridan had been able to satisfy the requirements of the board of education for Ireland. But he accomplished it nevertheless and still retains his position as village schoolmaster. He had, however, to submit to several indignities. His picturesque, rose-covered but antiquated schoolhouse was pulled down, and a plain, comfortable building erected in its stead. But far worse! He was compelled to submit to government inspection, he who had taught successfully for 30 years. Fortunately Mr. Kelly, the inspector, is broadminded enough to pass over Thady's ignorance of modern methods and discipline in consideration of the good results he obtains on the whole.

It was rather a shock to him, on coming unexpectedly to the school, to find Thady teaching a class of "infants" with two of the youngest seated on his knees. But his surprise was still greater when, having produced the usual "Punishment Book" and explained that every caning administered to the children must be registered, Thady exclaimed, in genuine astonishment, "Surely, sir, you don't believe I would ever lay a finger on the children."

"Oh, come now, Mr. Sheridan, the boys must need it occasionally."

Thady drew himself up to his full height. "Never! And if ever I found I could not make them do me bidding without punishment I'd resign at once."

So Thady continues to rule entirely and successfully by affection. "His frown is sufficient correction; his love is the law of the school." And the children do him credit at examinations, except, it must be admitted, in English composition. That is certainly their weak point.

The inspector on one occasion having carefully explained what "advantages" meant, asked the bigger boys to write an essay on "The Advantages of Country Life," and the following was the best effort that resulted: "There does be many good points in living in the country. Ye can dig your own praties and milk your own goat and eat your own hen's eggs if your mother'll let you. Ye can catch the farmer's asses that are eating the grass, if so be that the farmer doesn't catch you. But the best of it all is ye can 'mich' whenever you like, whileas them poor gossoons as lives in towns can't so much as stay away from school for one week without having the 'polis' after them. Thanks be, I live in the country."

In spite of this, one is glad that Thady is still the village schoolmaster, for his influence for good is strong and continues long after his pupils have left school. In fact, there are many men and women now living in "The Big Smoke," as some Irish peasants call Dublin, and others scattered all over the world who testify with gratitude to the loving guidance and training they received from Thady Sheridan.—Christian Science Monitor.

Bird-Banding Association Formed.

In connection with the bird-banding work of the biological survey, United States Department of Agriculture, 1,338 mallards, black ducks and pintails were trapped and banded in November and December at the Sangamois club, Browning, Ill., by a member of the bureau. A large number of returns from these birds have already been received. The information furnished by the returns regarding the movements of these migratory birds will be of much value to those interested in bird-banding work.

A new Inland Bird-Banding association has been formed in the central states, which co-operate with the biological survey in this work. Particular attention will be given by it to a study of the birds that follow the Mississippi valley flyway.

Potato Row Ten Miles Long.

The world's longest potato field, with rows ten miles long, is believed to be in Union county, Oregon. The owner of the elongated patch leased the right of way from the Oregon Washington railway and plants his crop, four rows on each side of the track. It requires a farmer one whole day to make a round trip of cultivating two rows, or 20 miles of plowing.

Aside from the money this potato field brings its owner, the railroad profits somewhat in that the green vines in midsummer are a fire preventative and serve as a fire break for those started elsewhere.

How It Excelled.

When the punitive expedition was in Mexico in 1916 and 1917, one of the newspaper correspondents asked a negro trooper of the Tenth cavalry what he thought of Mexico. The trooper studied a minute and then answered: "Well, boss, there is more cows and less milk, more rivers and less water, and you can see farther and see less than any country in the world."—Judge.

"You don't tell as many funny stories as you used to."

"Times have changed," replied Senator Sorghum. "Everybody is telling funny stories. If you want to please an auditor now you've got to be serious for a change."

The mark of the man of the world is absence of pretension. He does not make a speech; he takes a low business tone, avoids all brag, is nobody, dresses plainly, promises not at all, performs much, speaks in monosyllables, hugs his fact.—Emerson.

Parking the Cows.

John Marks was attending the state fair for the first time. When he became tired his father took him into the Coliseum where he might get a seat and rest. Some thoroughbred cattle were being judged and while John Marks and his father sat there the cattle were all lined up side by side with faces to the wall. The child watched the cattle and in a moment said: "Daddy, what for they parking those cows against that fence?"—Indianapolis Star.

Measuring Corn in Crib.

To figure the number of bushels of ear corn in a crib multiply the length of the crib by the width by the height by four-ninths if corn is of good quality after several months in crib or by four-tenths if corn is new or of inferior quality. If the corn carries the shuck, multiply length by width by height and divide by three. If the width or length of the crib is different at the top and bottom of the pile of corn, use the average.

All He Could Say for Them.

Two famous actors, novices at the game, were playing golf. They were gradually but surely reducing the turf to an approximation of a plowed field. Finally their caddies felt that they could stand it no longer. One turned to the other with: "Did you say them two are actors, Jim?" "Yes, Jo," admitted the second, anguish and apology struggling in his voice. "Well," said the first, "all I can say is they might make good scene shifters."

Royal Heads Preserved.

The head of the late Czar Nicholas of Russia and those of his family who met death with him at Ekaterinburg at the hands of the Bolshevists are being preserved in alcohol in the Kremlin at Moscow, according to Captain Hirsch, chief of staff of the Russian refugee fleet anchored at the Marloves quarantine station, near Marseilles, Egypt. Hirsch, who served with Admiral Kolchak's anti-Bolshevik army in Siberia asserted that documents captured by Kolchak troops at Ekaterinburg revealed that the heads of the murdered members of the Russian royal family were cut off and preserved in alcohol and the trunks of the bodies burned.

Supremely happy because they had just become engaged a sailor and his girl sat cuddled up and in hand in the gallery of a music hall.

"Bill," she whispered, giving his hand a little squeeze, "I am all-in-all to you, and you are all-in-all to me. Will it always be so?"

"Yus," answered Bill, promptly, "all my life, from now till the second o' June, and from the third of November till—till death. In the time between the dates mentioned I shall be ractin' in the Mediterranean."

World's Silk Production.

Every year 200,000,000,000 silk worms produce 60,000,000 pounds of raw silk. It has been estimated that taken all together the world's silk worms spin every year a web long enough to girdle the earth about 1,750,000 times, or reach a cloud of approximately 1,000,000,000 inches in height.

LEAVES AND ENEMIES

The Breeze Brothers were whispering and chatting with the leaves.

"It is a pity," said one of the leaves as it trembled and laughed a little, "that we have enemies."

"I can't understand how you should have enemies, said the Breeze Brothers. "All of you are so wonderful. Leaves give shade, leaves give beauty, leaves give coolness in the heat of summer. Leaves are very wonderful.

"And leaves we are always so glad to see in the springtime!"

"Yes," said the leaf which had been talking, "we like to feel we are all of the things you say we are.

"We want to be liked, for we love the beautiful world.

"We like to look up at the sun, and we like to look at the blue sky. We love to hear Mr. Sun's secrets in the early spring, when we really become so curious we just come out further and further to hear what he is saying.

"And we do so enjoy cooling showers which bathe us and give us food and refreshment.

"And we love you, Breeze Brothers, and we love to play with you!

"But we have enemies.

"Yes, there are caterpillars which do not like us. And as we open in the spring many, many little tent caterpillars come forth and feed on our buds and upon us when we're so very young.

"You Are So Wonderful."

"They make a nest right in one of the corners of our branches, and there they set up housekeeping without asking our permission and not caring in the least whether we like it or not.

"Then, while they're in the nest they come forth and eat on our leaves, which is rude, to say the least.

"We've never invited them to come. They've never had an invitation. They're not even wanted.

"And it is said that each caterpillar can eat as much as two small leaves a day, so you see how dreadful it is to let them get control over us.

"Especially do they like the wild black cherry trees, but they like us, too, and we belong to the apple tree family."

"Yes, we know," said the Breeze Brothers. "This is really dreadful to think of the way the caterpillars do act. What little wretches they are—especially those tent caterpillars."

"Ah, yes," continued the leaf, "they are dreadful. Their nest grows in size with them, too, you know.

But even early, early in the spring they're waiting to make the most of us and to take advantage of our spring awakening.

"They have glued their eggs to the twigs of our trees so even the birds cannot get them off.

"And then, you see, they are all ready to feast upon us as we come out.

"They lie in wait for us, as it were, shocking creatures they are, their behavior is simply too awful.

"And though the birds will eat them when they're young and not too tough, still the caterpillars come so early that they get ahead of the birds and are usually pretty well grown by the time the birds come.

"By then they are spinning their white cocoons everywhere they can—under fences, under sticks, under big boards—oh, you see them everywhere!

"A few weeks after they have done this brown moths come forth and they lay eggs which are quiet until the following spring, when they hatch out and do just as the members of their family have done before them.

"Tent caterpillars are very bad, very bad, indeed.

"And perhaps you may say it is a compliment to us that they like to build their homes upon our trees, and that they like to eat of our goodness, and that they show us marked attention.

"But it is not the kind of attention we like! We like kindly attention, such as the Sun gives us, and such as you, Breeze Brothers, give us, and such as the South Wind gives us."

"Thank you," said the Breeze Brothers, "for thinking well of us, as we do dearly love you, Leaves!

"And we'll try to get around messages to as many as possible that Tent Caterpillars and their family do a great deal of harm.

"Yes, we'll do that, Leaves, for we think they're dreadful and that their attention to you is selfish and mean and wrong."

"Oh, Breeze Brothers, you will do us a great favor," the Leaves whispered.

GAS BUGGIES—A Man Can't Do Any More Than Try

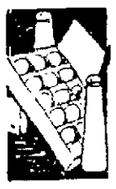
The KITCHEN CABINET

(©, 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

My business is not to remake myself, but to make the absolute best of what God has made.—Robert Browning.

SOMETHING TO EAT

As eggs become more plentiful omelets will be a common dish for the family breakfast or luncheon.



Combination Omelet.—Beat together four eggs, add one chopped onion, one chopped tomato, a little grated cheese and salt and pepper to season. Cook in an omelet pan and serve with strips of bacon and pieces of buttered toast.

Baked Salmon With Peas.—Take one can of salmon and one can of peas. Make a sauce of two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour cooked until smooth, and two cupfuls of milk added. Add the sauce to the salmon and peas, put into a buttered baking dish and bake covered with buttered crumbs. If one desires, a loaf may be made and steamed in a small bread pan, the peas and sauce mixed and poured around the loaf after unmolding it on a hot platter.

Apricot Dessert.—Wash, soak and steam until soft one cupful of dried apricots. Mash through a sieve, add one-half cupful of powdered sugar and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs. Chill and serve with a fruit sauce.

Fish Chowder.—Take two cupfuls of flaked codfish, or any white fish; two cupfuls of diced potatoes, one-fourth cupful of chopped onion, one-third of a cupful of diced salt pork, two cupfuls of milk and one-half dozen milk crackers. Soak the fish if salt, shred fine or flake, parboil the potatoes for two minutes, fry the pork, add the onion, cook until a light brown, arrange layers in a kettle, cover with milk and simmer; add more milk and the crackers, one for each dish of chowder. Salt, cayenne and pepper are added to taste. This is a fine supper dish on a cool night.

Cheese Soup.—Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, cook until smooth and thick, add four cupfuls of milk and boil three to four minutes. Add one tablespoonful of minced onion and two tablespoonfuls of minced parsley, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt and three-fourths of a cupful of grated cheese. Serve as soon as the cheese is melted.

NOTICE OF BOND SALE.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the undersigned the county treasurer of the County of Ulster, in the State of New York, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the court house in the City of Kingston, in said county, on the 31st day of March, 1923, at 10 o'clock (10:00) in the forenoon of that day.

Thirteen bonds of the County of Ulster of the par value of $5,000 each, which said bonds will bear date April 1st, 1923, and will bear interest at the rate of four and one-half per cent per annum, one of said bonds will mature on the 1st day of March of each of the years, 1924 to 1936, both inclusive.

The said bonds are registered bonds and interest thereupon is payable annually.

Said bonds are issued pursuant to Sections 12, 13 and 14 of the County Law, Sec. 142 of the Highway Law and Sections 6, 7, 8, 9, and 10 of the General Municipal Law, and pursuant to an Act of the Board of Supervisors of Ulster County passed on the 22nd day of December, 1922.

Said bonds are issued for the purpose of paying for the County of Ulster's proportionate share of the cost of construction of County Highways in said county.

Said bonds cannot be sold for less than par.

The county will not be liable to the purchaser or any other person for any allowance for attorney's fees in relation to said bonds or to investigating the validity thereof.

The terms of sale thereof may be obtained by applying to the undersigned.

The bonds will be offered for oral bids, but written proposals may be submitted in accordance with the terms of sale.

All bids must be in lump sums only and not on a percentage basis.

The bonds will first be offered separately and then in a block.

In event the aggregate of the bids for the separate bonds exceed the highest block bid all the bonds will be struck down to the highest bidders for the individual bonds, but in event the highest bid for the bonds in block, equals or exceeds the aggregate of the amount of bids for the single bonds, the bonds will be struck off to the block bidder.

No bids shall be binding upon the county until the bonds have been offered both ways and actually struck off to a purchaser.

Dated, March 21st, 1923.

DR. DAVIS SAYS HE WAS BORN HERE

In the 68 or 78 Years, Depending on Veracity, Since Then, He Has Been Much Married, Say Police, Swindling and Leaving Mates.

Charles W. Davis, alias Taylor, who according to police officials of Elmira, has embarked several times on the sea of matrimony only to swindle his latest wife out of money or property and then move on to another victim, was landed in jail at Wilkes-Barre when he attempted to marry one of his abandoned wives a second time after he had read her advertisement for a husband in a matrimonial journal.

According to police officials, Davis said when he procured a marriage license in Elmira that his name was Charles W. Davis, aged 65 years, residing at 200 Folsom street, Sacramento, Cal., and that he was a retired physician, born in Kingston, New York, and that he had been married before and his wife was dead.

In June, 1921, Davis it is claimed, married Mrs. Jennie Steele of Elmira and in September of last year it is claimed he married Mrs. Emma N. Rhodes of Binghamton, afterwards defrauding her of $1,000.

The Wilkes-Barre authorities allege that Davis married Mrs. Emma Ceiger in Cleveland last fall after corresponding with her through a matrimonial agency. He lived with her a short time and left with $300 and a number of pieces of jewelry. Recently Mrs. Ceiger moved from Cleveland to Wilkes-Barre and again advertised in a matrimonial journal. After he had courted her by mail for a time he arranged to go to Wilkes-Barre and there found out he was courting his former wife. She recognized him and caused his arrest. Since his arrest the Wilkes-Barre police have received a dozen letters from women who believe that he is the man who swindled them out of money through matrimony.

Mrs. Steele, who married Davis at Elmira, entered a complaint with the police at Elmira that Davis had left after a few days, taking with him money and valuables amounting to $600. Mrs. Rhodes also swore out a warrant with the Binghamton police for the arrest of a Charles W. Davis, claiming that after a brief married life Davis absconded with her life savings, $1,000, and some jewelry.

The various matrimonial ventures seem to have been the outcome of correspondence through advertisements for a husband which appeared in matrimonial journals.

The Elmira police claim Davis is 73 years old.

So far as can be learned the man who is being held by the Wilkes-Barre police has not resided in this city at least for a great number of years and older residents fail to recollect a Dr. Charles W. Davis. He may have been born here and moved away at an early age.

BLACK HAND BOMB WRECKS SYRACUSE STORE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Syracuse, N. Y., March 29. The force of the blast rocking buildings within a range of several blocks, a bomb explosion early today wrecked the store of Leonard Pavia at No. 939 North Salina street.

Police, after questioning Pavia, brand the explosion as a black hand outrage. The man had previously disregarded a demand for $1,500.

The lives of eight persons, residing in living apartments over and in the rear of the store, were endangered.

DIRECTOR TALKS TO GIRL SCOUTS

At the regular weekly meeting of the training course for Girl Scouts officers Monday evening at the public library, Miss Teresa Carter, assistant regional director for Region No. 2, (New York and New Jersey) spoke to the class on national organization and the relation of the local council to national headquarters. After her talk, Miss Carter opened an informal discussion and "question-box."

Miss Carter held a formal enrollment ceremony, and presented 23 officers' with Tenderfoot pins, which they had earned since the opening of the course, three weeks ago. Two members of the class had not only earned their Tenderfoot pins, but had also completed the requirements for their Second Class badges. The newly made Second Class Scouts were Miss Edith J. Smith, director of physical education in the Kingston schools, and Mrs. Earl Haley.

At the meeting of the class a week ago, a lecture on "The Healthy Scout" was given by Miss Elizabeth Brown, Ulster county tuberculosis nurse.

On April 2nd, Miss May Davis, of the Kingston High School Department of Home Economics, will give a talk and demonstration on the general topic "Home Economics for the Girl Scout." Miss Davis will stress food values and give suggestions for a balanced diet.

Visitors are welcome to attend any or all of the lectures and class work of this training course, meetings of which will continue each Monday evening at 7:30 for several weeks.

STATE PROBATION REPORT FOR YEAR

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, March 29.—More than 21,000 men, women and children were saved from the stigma of reformatory or prison sentences in 1922. This unanswerable argument for what may be called the social work of the courts is contained in the report of the state probation commission which was presented to the legislature yesterday. There were 21,719 cases turned over by judges to probation officers serving the courts of New York state during the year ending June 20, 1922, and approximately 76 per cent of those who completed their terms of probation were discharged as improved.

The failure of men to adequately support their wives and children or aged parents is the leading offense for which adults are placed on probation. Over 46 per cent of the men released on probation by the courts last year were guilty of this charge. From these non-supporting or deserting husbands, over two and a half million dollars for family support was collected by probation officers.

The commission says that the superiority of home oversight for certain well defined classes of offenders to any form of prison discipline is now generally accepted. Probation has proven not only a sensible method of dealing with offenders, but it has proven an effective measure for reducing the cost of crime.

It costs $429.39 to maintain a man in a correctional institution for one year, and but $28.39 to supervise him on probation for the same period. It is estimated that in addition to his maintenance in a penal or correctional institution, which comes out of the pockets of the taxpayers, it costs at least $624 a year to keep a wife and child, a sum which in most cases would come either from public funds or some private charitable agency.

LAKE KATRINE.

Lake Katrine, March 29.—There will be service next Sunday afternoon at the hall. Following the hour of worship in the Sunday school, which begins at 2:30, there will be a preaching service, and the Rev. Mr. Stekotee expects to be present and speak in "The Meaning of Easter Day." A cordial invitation is hereby extended to all to attend both these services.

COUNTY TO SELL HIGHWAY BONDS

County Treasurer William H. Van Etten will sell at auction at the court house in this city Saturday, March 31, at 10 a. m., thirteen Ulster county bonds at the par value of $5,000 each, that will bear interest at the rate of 4½ per cent. These bonds are issued to pay the county's proportionate share of the cost of construction of county highways in Ulster county.

SAYS $62,158,000 HAS DROPPED FROM FRENCH BOOKS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, March 29.—Senator Villaine, of the French parliament today demanded that the senate investigate the whereabouts of $62,155,000 which Germany seized from Russia after the Brest Litovsk peace conference.

The Allies forced Germany to pay over this amount in gold at the time of the armistice in November, 1918, whereupon it was deposited in the Bank of France. It is clamed that this sum was never divided among the Allies, but was "simply forgotten."

Senator Villaine said that no trace of the money could be found in the public accounts or the government's cash books.

ROSENDALE.

Rosendale, March 29.—There will be services in the Reformed Church next Sunday morning. The Easter lesson is the Sunday school is to be found in Luke 24, from 13 to 31; Golden Text, verses 4 and 5. This service begins at 10 a. m. Immediately following this hour there will be a service of worship, with preaching by the Rev. J. B. Stekeetee. The topic will be, "The Meaning of the Easter Holyday." All who do not worship elsewhere are invited to attend these services.

MODENA.

Modena, March 28.—The play, "Mr. Bob," which was successfully given at Cintondale, Friday night, by the Modena Sunday school will be repeated at Modena Wednesday evening, April 4th.

There will be special Easter services held in the Modena M. E. Church Easter Sunday. There will be recitations and songs by the children and special songs by the choir.

URGES PAYMENT OF INCOME TAX

As a result of information received today from Albany, to the effect that only a small percentage of persons subject to the State Income Tax Law in Kingston have so far filed returns, John G. Malone, director of the Albany district today called attention to residents of the vicinity to the fact that the state is conducting a branch office of the Income Tax Bureau in Kingston. The office is being conducted in the court house, and taxpayers are urged to take advantage of the facilities offered there to secure assistance and advice in making out their State Income Tax returns, which must be filed on or before April 16th.

Ralph V. Hayes, representing the Income Tax Bureau is in charge of the local office and he will be on hand only until April 7th. Therefore, the Tax Commission urges everyone to consult him as soon as possible to avoid inconvenience which may arise from the last minute rush.

Passion Service at Holy Cross.

The Three Hours' Agony of Jesus Christ on the Cross will be commemorated Good Friday at the Church of the Holy Cross, from noon until 3:00 p. m. The rector of the parish, the Rev. HIGHLAND.

Highland, March 29.—Mrs. F. A. Coons of this place and Mrs. Van Amburgh, her sister, of Pine Bush, spent Tuesday in Poughkeepsie.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Ames have returned home from a few days' motor trip. They were in New York, Princeton, New Jersey, and Philadelphia, and had a delightful time.

There will be special Easter music in all churches in this place.

Several friends of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Schuhle gave them a surprise party Friday evening, March 23, and to say all had a grand time would be putting it very light. They enjoyed games, visiting and last but not least, a good big feed, and all carried their appetites with them and there was nothing missed.

The card party given Tuesday evening, March 27, by J. O. U. A. M., was a success, although it was during Lent and Holy Week. There was a good attendance. Everyone enjoyed the games and the social and there were fine refreshments, which all greatly enjoyed and appreciated, after some tasks at seeing who could win out in cards and other games which require some skill. This order needed some funds and these things for socials are reminders of things that should be done and which keep lighted the fires of patriotism within the hearts of every member of J. O. U. A. M. and D. of A., and if interest enough was displayed the orders could realize substantial amounts by holding carnivals, bazars, entertainments and so forth to help them out in many ways and we would be real helpers and true citizens.

Mrs. Arthur Schamerhorn and daughter have returned home after a few days spent in New York city with friends.

Queen Esther people held their regular meeting Wednesday evening, March 21, at Hillair bungalow, Grand street, with Mrs. A. Schumacher as hostess. There was a large attendance. Business and social parts were greatly enjoyed and she served most delicious refreshments. Little after 10 all left for their homes, expressing their pleasure to the hostess for her delightful evening's entertainment.

Mrs. William Maynard has returned home after a visit in Brooklyn.

Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Clearwater entertained recent guests from Port Ewen.

Miss A. Terwilliger has been confined home for a few days by illness, but is better at present.

Mr. and Mrs. Winthrope Williams had as their recent guest Mrs. E. C. Quimby of Marlborough.

Mrs. Livingston Rhodes has recovered from her attack of grip.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Palmer were in Coxsackie last week.

Several of the pupils from the State College at Albany have arrived home to spend their Easter vacation.

Ruth Cummings is now home for her Easter vacation. She is in Prattsville teaching.

Mrs. George Main, Sr., has spent a week in Kingston with relatives.

Captain R. H. Decker spent Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Terpening at Ulster Park.

Ladies' Guild of Holy Trinity Church met Friday, 23rd, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Reilly.

Zeno Lodge, K. of P., went to Marlborough Monday evening and visited Advance Lodge there and conferred the third degree on a few candidates from this place.

Mrs. R. H. Decker was present on Wednesday evening, March 23, for D. of A. meeting, the first she has been out since installation of officers January 1. Grip seemed to take hold of many of the lodge members.

Mrs. Vincent Jordan is at present in the house with another severe cold affecting head and throat.

The Rev. and Mrs. Foster A. Coons had as their guests Sunday Dr. and Mrs. E. R. Van Amburg of Pine Bush, also Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ward of Poughkeepsie.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Scoefield had as guests Sunday Mr. and Mrs. J. Ireland, parents of Mrs. Scoelfield, also Mrs. H. Knapp and daughter of Fishkill.

Mr. and Mrs. Theron DuBois of Maple avenue entertained their son, T. E. DuBois, of New York city, the week end.

Captain R. H. Decker was a recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Decker at Pleasant Valley.

Last Sunday, the 25th, was a gala day for M. E. Church people. There was a good congregation present to hear the able sermon of Pastor F. A. Coons and at conclusion of the sermon the official board and choir gave a fine hot roast pork dinner in the church parlor. Mrs. J. P. Whitley and Mrs. F. L. Metcalf had this in charge. There was a large delegation present and testified to the grandeur of the dinner which consisted of bouillon, hot roast pork, mashed potatoes, dish gravy, apple sauce, jelly, cabbage salad, wafers, crullers and coffee. After the meal the teams of solicitors for canvassing for church funds were selected and all started out and were more successful than ever. Everything seemed to have just the right swing to it, and cooperation and harmony was the slogan, and with unity there will nothing be left undone, for all was inspiring through the day.

Charles Bickert of Danbury, Conn., was week end guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wilcox.

J. P. Whitley is having the interior of his house decorated and renovated from top to bottom. He is an enthusiastic and up to date man.

O. E. S. of this place held their regular meeting Tuesday evening.

Miss Bertha Dimsey, A. J. P. C. of D. of A., of this place, has been confined to the house for six weeks with a bad sprained ankle. She gets about with a crutch. All hope she may soon be able to take her usual place as officer in the order.

Word has received from Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Maynard, who are in Florida. They are having a grand time and expect to be home some time in April.

Plan NOW against next winter's cold

WITH the recent improvement in suitable devices, the use of oil for central heating plants in homes has become a proved success.

By their means thousands of householders this winter have escaped all the worries and annoyances of the shortage or poor quality of coal—some of them are doubtless your neighbors.

Their homes have been warm, their families comfortable, and furnace troubles unknown, all at a reasonable cost.

These oil-heating devices can be adapted to any existing heating system as readily as they can be installed in new houses. Socony Furnace Oil is prepared especially to meet their requirements.

May we suggest that you look into this subject now, rather than risk a last-minute decision next fall?

LUSK LAWS TO BE REPEALED

Machold Says as Much Following Conference At Which Many Republicans Are Found to be Against Them.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, March 29.—This week's conference of the Assembly Republicans developed one of the real surprises of the present session of the Legislature—that the Lusk anti-sedition laws, in all probability, will be wiped off the statute books.

Although Speaker Machold had never committed himself on the possibility of the repeal of the Lusk statutes, the general talk among the Republican members of the lower house has been that the Democratic repeal measures would be killed in the Assembly.

It developed at the conference that there were 18 Republicans who favored having the repeal bills reported for consideration of the house. One Republican who expressed this opinion in the conference, later said he would not vote for the repeal bills when they came up for final action. He said however, that he thought there ought to be an open and frank discussion of the merits of the laws on the floor of the Assembly, and for that reason he was in favor of having the committee report them.

Until the action of the conference, there had been every reason to believe that the bills would be smothered to death in committee. The repeal of the Lusk laws was recommended by Governor Smith in his annual message, and if the Democratic bills are passed in the Senate, it will mark the first approval by the Republicans of any of the administration measures.

Speaker Machold intimated, following the conference, that he thought the Lusk laws probably would be repealed. It is said that a good many of the up-state Republicans, particularly those who come from rural districts, expressed the opinion in the conference that the bills ought to be held in committee. But the Republicans from the cities, so the story goes, were opposed to such action and after 18 had spoken in favor of reporting the measures, the speaker decided the bills should be reported.

Senator Lusk, the minority leader in the upper house, made a stiff fight to have the repeal bills beaten when they come up for final action in the Senate two weeks ago. He would have won his fight, had it not have been for the fact that Senator Davenport, Republican, of Oneida, voted for the Democratic bills.

It is understood Governor Smith is greatly pleased because the bills are to be reported. He feels sure it is said, that the laws will not be repealed.

4 DOCTORS CALL MIGNANO INSANE

Testimony Given as to His Queer Actions in County Jail Where He Awaits Appeal Argument.

As the result of peculiar actions and fits of temper during the past two weeks, Sam Mignano, who has been in the Ulster county jail for considerably more than a year, has been examined by six physicians during the past week, and this morning a hearing was had before Judge Joseph M. Fowler at county court chambers when four of the six physicians expressed the opinion that he is insane.

Mignano about two years ago surrendered himself at the Ulster county sheriff's office for the killing of Joe Amica, a fellow Italian, at Malden, more than a year before. No indictment ever had been found against him, but when the grand jury examined the case shortly thereafter he was indicted and tried on a charge of murder. The testimony show that Mignana had started out of the house after an argument had taken place earlier in the day over the ownership of some trinkets by his own children or the children of Amica. Mignano claimed he shot in self defense, but the jury found him guilty of manslaughter in the first degree and he was sentenced to imprisonment in Dannemora prison for a maximum of twelve years and a minimum of six years.

Ex-Mayor Palmer Canfield, Jr., who is soon to be Federal Prohibition Enforcement Officer for the state of New York, defended Mignano, and appealed his case to the appellate division of the supreme court, which reversed the judgment of conviction on questions of law, and granted a new trial. The case having been decided on questions of law and not questions of fact, an appeal was taken to the Court of Appeals by District Attorney Traver, and the case is on the calendar of the next term of the Court of Appeals for argument. The appellate division decided that testimony of a former shooting by Mignano at Newburgh was improper in his trial for killing Amica. Pending the determination of the appeal by the appellate division and by the Court of Appeals, Mignano has been in jail, where he worked in the kitchen.

The hearing before Judge Fowler was brought on by an application by Night Jailer Seth Jocelyn for Mignano's commitment to a hospital for the care of criminal insane. District Attorney Traver appeared for The People. A copy of an order of Judge Fowler for the present proceeding was served on Brinnier & Brinnier, and also on ex-Mayor Canfield. They did not appear.

Jailer Jocelyn testified that there had been times during the past year when Mignano would get very excited without any cause. He would refuse to do certain things in the kitchen and slammed the dishes around. Sometimes he wouldn't get the meals. He did not complain of his treatment at the jail. When asked why he acted that way, his excuse was his attorney; that he had been tried and convicted and wanted to go to Dannemora prison instead of staying in jail; that he had not told his lawyer to do anything about the case after he had been convicted; that his lawyer had taken his money and hadn't done anything.

Two weeks ago he had asked for a fountain syringe, saying he felt bad, but while Jailer Jocelyn was getting the syringe Mignano broke one of the windows in the basement of the jail. While Mr. Jocelyn was in court with some prisoners a short time afterwards, Mignano broke another window in the basement, said the syringe wasn't any good and he had broken the windows to attract attention, that he didn't want to die. Jailer Jocelyn had offered to get him medicine, but he said he never had taken any wouldn't take it.

Jailer Robert E. Every said Mignano had told him he wanted medicine, and complained of pains in his stomach. Mignano showed him a box which had the label of "Yellow Jacket' pills. Mr. Every asked him if any other kind would do, and Mignano said no, he wanted that kind. One day some blankets had been washed and hung up to dry, and Mignano told him that Jocelyn had had them washed as they were going to kill him. Mignano, and also Mr. Every, and wrap them in the blankets. The day he broke the windows, the cords stood out on his neck and he was very angry. He said he didn't want to stay in jail but wanted to go to Dannemora.

Dr. John T. Buckley, jail physician, testified he had noticed certain acts of Migano which he considered irrational. Several months ago he seemed to lose interest in things and wanted to be segregated from the other inmates. When he talked, he had flighty ideas, jumping from one thing to another; he would start talking about one thing and wind up on another. Dr. Buckley never was called on to give him medicine. He and Dr. John G. O'Leary examined him the day he broke the windows. At first he did not know why he broke them, but later said someone was making a noise in the back yard and he wanted to see who it was. He did not know why he had broken the side windows, but touched his forehead. He has delusions, said the doctor, thinking that bells are ringing, asking him to die. He imagines someone has a grudge against him and wants to kill him. In the last few days he has wanted to lie on the floor instead of his cot. These spells are preceded by melancholia. In the doctor's opinion, Mignano is insane.

Dr. E. H. Loughran examined Mignano on March 15 with Dr. Francis J. Dudenhausen, and on March 24 with Dr. Henry Van Hoevenberg. In giving his life history, Mignano talked intelligently. Had a strong dislike to his attorney, who, he said, had taken all his money and hadn't seen him since getting his last $100. Mignano had said he had a pain in his stomach and he had broken the windows to attract attention as no attention was paid to his requests. He did not appear to be agitated except when he spoke of his children. Then he spoke of his boy, 20 years old, and his girl, 16 years old, and said it made him cry to think they were working to support the rest of the family, when he should be at work, instead of being kept in jail. Dr. Loughran said Mignano was a temperamental, high-strung, nervous man, thoroughly understanding the difference between right and wrong, and the doctor could not see that he was mentally unbalanced. In his temperamental condition he might have a destructive mania.

Dr. Francis J. Dudenhausen said that he had examined Mignano when the latter complained of stomach pains and had stated the reason therefor, but had not found an inflated condition such as would exist if the cause was what Mignano had stated. Mignano imagined he had pain there. He said he had broken the windows because he had not received attention. The night of the day on which he had broken the windows, Mignano had became so noisy that Dr. Dudenhausen had offered him ten drops of laudanum to quiet him, but Mignano had refused it, saying all medicine was poison and that people were trying to poison him. That night Mignano was excited and talked incoherently, complaining of his lawyer and the judge who sentenced him. He said he wanted to go to Dannemora prison instead of staying in jail. In the doctor's opinion, Mignano is insane.

Dr. Henry Van Hoevenberg testified he had examined Mignano on March 15, in company with Jailer Jocelyn, and later in company of Dr. Loughran. Mignano had spoken of a pain in his bowels and wanted a syringe, furnishing a rough drawing of the kind of syringe he wanted. He did not want the syringe which Jailer Jocelyn had procured for him, and showed how he had tried to use it. Mignano did not know how to operate the shut-off, so the syringe would not work. He had not appeared especially excited. He had said he had not seen his attorney since his trial and did not think the attorney was doing anything for him. He had described the events leading up to the Malden shooting, but, could not remember how the gun went off. He had illustrated his talk by waving his hands. Dr. Van Hoevenberg could not say that Mignano was insane, but thought he should be somewhere where he could be placed under observation.

Dr. John G. O'Leary, who was appointed by Judge Fowler to examine Mignano, said he previously had examined him at the request of Dr. Buckley. That was the day he broke the windows, but he did not know why he had done it except that he had felt bad, touching his head to illustrate. On examining his last Monday with Dr. B. W. Gifford, he found that Mignano talked lucidly about the past but was neither lucid nor coherent about recent happenings. He said he had broken the window on account of the pain in his stomach. In the doctor's opinion, Mignano is insane.

Dr. Bertram W. Gifford of Saugerties gave similar testimony to that of Dr. O'Leary regarding Monday's examination. He had been Mignano's family physician for eight or nine years and during that time Mignano frequently took medicine, but on Monday he had said he would not take medicine, which was poison to him. He said they had taken all his money away and he had done $500 damage in the jail. He said he was treated all right at the jail, but he wanted to go to Dannemora prison instead of staying there. He explained to the doctor at one examination that he had broken the jail window to attract attention of someone so as to give them his watch and chain in order that they could go and buy a bag for him. At times he was incoherent. He believed Mignano insane.

Judge Fowler reserved decision.

Thieves' Island.

An odd geographical name is often disguised by being in a foreign tongue. Take the Ladrones, for instance, a well-known group of Pacific islands. Magellan gave them this name because the natives were such inveterate purloiners, and "Thieves' Island" they have remained ever since.

GREAT MEN MERELY HUMAN

"Select of the Earth" Really Differ Very Little From the Rest of Mankind.

Once when a grave ambassador visited an English king he was ushered into a room where he found the king on all fours, his son mounted upon his back and riding him hard. Around the tables, in and out between the chairs, the horse traveled while the gray-haired ambassador cheered the rider on.

Abraham Lincoln carried a load of responsibility and care that might have staggered the bravest man, but in the midst of his sore distress he found time to slip away to spend an hour with Tad, and when his duties called him from home he could still find time to write a note to the child he had left behind—tender little messages breathing fatherly thought and affection.

Our own Roosevelt—there was a man's man, but he found time to father his children. He knew how to play with them. Remember that story of him playing "hide and seek" in the dark with the pack of youngsters in full cry? He was then President of the United States. There was every reason why he should have cried off from the frolic; he was not as young as he had been; his office was one of tremendous dignity and of such responsibility as to make his life not his own, but a people's trust. Still he played with the children.

Fine object lessons may be learned from a study of the home lives of noted people around the earth.—Columbia Record.

Twanging the Lyre.

The Kansan and the Texan were telling each other of the thoroughgoing efficient nature of cyclones in their respective states.

Said the Kansan: "Well, sir, it was in 1906 and I was drilling for oil. I knew it was there, about 2,000 feet down, but I had just got down a thousand and ran out of money. Figured I was busted. Along came a Kansas twister and didn't do a thing but suck the bottom out of that well and bring in a gusher. Hard to believe, but the well's there yet."

Said the Texan: "Sure, I believe it. That's nothing. During the drought of '87 my cattle in west Texas were dying fast. I set out to drill for water. Got down about a mile and still digging dust. Figured I'd better ride over to town and ask the school teacher how far I could go before I struck China. Well, sir, while I was gone a Texas cyclone came along, took rig, well and all. When I got back there was a lake a mile across and spreading fast, and the strange part was that the water was a regular Chinese yellow and just wiggling with cross-eyed tadpoles."—New Orleans Times-Picayune.

Trapping the "Flu" Germ.

Germ of the "flu" has been "isolated," which is the doctors' word for caged, so that it can be microscoped. It is, no doubt, dashing wildly about, gnashing its teeth with rage; and as demoniacally possessed of the will to do evil as if it were a baleful-eyed fire-breathing dragon of the sort that St. George slew.

There are dragons in our day, too; only they are well-nigh invisible. They are as ravenous of sentient life as anything which wandered among the great ferns of the steaming prehistoric ages, although a microscopic photographic picture of them makes them look no more ferocious than a hyphen or the point of a needle.

All the large predatory animals that threatened man are extinct or on their way to extinction. It is the invisible world of malevolent creation that we have now to fear; and our resentment against the influenza germ hardens our hearts almost to a desire to practice cruelty upon it, if that were possible.

Inspiring Interest.

"It took me a long time to get the opposition editor out home to print that extract from my speech," murmured Senator Sorghum.

"How did you manage it?"

"Wrote it in a letter addressed to somebody else, but apparently put into the wrong envelope and marked it conspicuously, 'Not for Publication.'"

FISH BRING LEGION INCOME

Beaver Dam, Wis., Post Plans to Erect Community Building With Funds Obtained.

"Gold fish," was the contemptuous title bestowed upon embalmed salmon by John Doughboy during the World war. Many soldiers developed a lasting prejudice against anything moving in water because their army diet so often included tinned fish.

However, the finny tribe has staged an unusual comeback in one community. Members of the John E. Miller post of the American Legion, and likewise the good citizens of Beaver Dam, Wis., owe the possibility of a fine new community building to fish and to the practical imagination of the Legion members.

For a number of years, the Wisconsin conservation commission had awarded the concession of seining German and buffalo carp and other "rough fish" from Beaver Dam lake to professional fishermen, who annually gleaned many francs by selling their catch in the city markets.

C. R. Yauman.

Then the Legion post stepped in. Charles E. Yauman,* post commander, and William Lawrence, vice commander of the Wisconsin department, organized the Legionnaires for the purpose of circulating a petition to obtain the fishing concession from the conservation commission, with the understanding that profits would be used by the Legion in the construction of a community building. More than 6,000 persons signed the petition and the commission granted the concession to the veterans.

The Legionnaires organized the effort in a business-like manner. Yauman took care of the formation of seining crews and Lawrence made arrangements with New York and Chicago markets as well as local and nearby merchants to sell the catch. The post has more than 350 members, and everyone took some part in the enterprise.

The post's report testifies to the success of the undertaking:

"We have sold up to the present time a little over 90 tons of buffalo carp, which has netted us more than $7,500, including our equipment, which is as fine as any fishing crew can have." the report states. "We have paid $2,000 to the state and to our crew members, who were local boys and for the most part Legion members, as high as $1,000 a week in salaries, and $1,000 to our local box factory.

W. H. Lawrence.

"We sold many tons of fish to local consumers at a much lower price than market quotations which pleased the home people very much. We sold a quantity of fish in 100 pound lots to families, to be salted, smoked and pickled for home use."

The Beaver Dam post had the united support of the conservation commission in its undertaking. Game wardens co-operated with all seining crews and assisted materially in the success of the operation.

Recognized as the leading community organization in the town, the post has backed all worthy enterprises. Its large band is at the call of civic and patriotic organizations.

Won Legion Essay Prize.

Donald Lewis Campbell of Clinton, Ia., won first prize in his state in the American Legion's essay contest on the subject, "How Can the American Legion Best Serve the Nation?" The young Iowan's essay has been forwarded to Legion national headquarters, where it will be judged in competition with other state winners for national honors by a board composed of John J. Tigert, United States commissioner of education; E. E. Moore, former national commissioner of education, and S. S. McClure, the publisher. The Legion gave Campbell a medal. If he wins the national contest, he will receive a scholarship of $750 in any college or university. Young Campbell won first prize in a national essay contest in 1920 over all other school children contestants on the subject, "What Are the Benefits of an Enlistment in the United States Army?"

Why, Certainly Not.

The Boss—Is it true that you leave your typewriter and go when the clock strikes five, even if you are in the middle of a word?

The Stenog—Certainly not! When it gets as near five as that I never begin a word at all.—American Legion Weekly.

Great Victory Remembered.

Through the years the nuns of the Ursuline convent in New Orleans have regularly commemorated the anniversary of General Jackson's victory over the British with a solemn high mass of thanksgiving for the salvation of the city from the invading army.

THE PORT OF MISSING MEN

The American Legion is attempting to solve the mystery of the disappearance of Edward Stanley Starr, who left his home at 311 West One Hundred and Thirty-sixth street, New York City, on the morning of November 6 and has not been heard from since.

Edward Starr.

Starr was a bugler in the One Hundred and Second engineers of the Twenty-seventh division during the World war. Strenuous days left him physically fit but subject to periods of melancholy disposition.

Starr is an electrician and was employed by the International Time Recording company, 11 East Thirty-seventh street, New York, at the time of his disappearance. He is twenty-three years old, about five feet, eleven inches tall; weight 160 pounds, blue eyes, light brown hair, fair complexion, scar on his left wrist.

A widowed mother has asked the American Legion to find William Davern whom she has not seen since November, 1920, when he left his home in St. Paul to work in Cedar Rapids, Ia. Later he was heard from in St. Louis and New Orleans. In April, 1921, he was sent to New Jersey and then apparently dropped off the face of the earth. He was affiliated with the Bridge tructural and Ornamental Iron Workers' union. During the war he was a corporal in Battery B of the Seventy-seventh Field Artillery.

William Davern.

The American Legion is assisting Henry McKee of De Land, Ill., to locate his son, Harry T. McKee, who enlisted at Camp Grant, Ill., in September, 1919, and was discharged at San Francisco on November 28, 1922, after serving one year at Camp Grant and two years in Hawaii with the Eleventh F. A. He has dark brown eyes, black hair, a crooked right arm, and a scar just below the elbow; weight about 140 pounds. He will be twenty-one years of age on May 14, 1923.

Mrs. C. J. Traen of Taunton, Minn., would be very glad to hear from anyone who could give her any information regarding her brother, A. L. Houle, who enlisted on May 2, 1917, and was a member of company F, Fourteenth Infantry. He is five feet five inches tall; weight, 160 pounds; dark brown eyes and brown hair, inclined to be curly. Last heard from in December, 1921, and was at that time employed by J. P. Lang Co. at Corn Creek Branch, Belt, Mont.

Mrs. Florence Minney of McGregor, Ia., requests information concerning her son, Charles W. Minney, from whom she has not heard for the last two years. During the World war he served with the Thirty-fifth Infantry, Company C, and when next heard from was in Nuevo Laredo, Mexico. He is five feet eight inches in height, brown eyes, black hair.

Claude C. Du Lay, whose temporary address is Room 2118, Interior Department Building, Washington D. C., is trying to locate his brother, Floyd C. Du Lay, who was discharged at Camp Custer, Michigan, on March 5, 1918, as a private, Company G, Three Hundred and Fortieth Infantry. On or about November 11, 1918, he left his home in Detroit and has not been heard from since. He is twenty-nine years of age, five feet eleven inches tall, with heavy dark brown hair and dark brown eyes. Weight approximately 155 pounds. He has served in both the navy and the army. His occupation has been soda-man, and he has worked in a theater. At one time he traveled with a show under the name of R. W. Harris, and is known to many by the name of Bob Harris. A reward of $25 is offered.

In the interest of a father and mother, the Matoaka Post, No. 85 of Matoaka, W. Va., is inquiring for the whereabouts of George D. Donley, who was discharged at Camp Dix, New Jersey, on December 31, 1918, and who has not been heard from since. Any information should be sent to Matoaka Post No. 85, or to Mrs. C. L. Donley, Glatto, Mercer County, West Virginia.

Mrs. Edna Van Fleet, 349 South River street, Aurora, Ill., has asked the American Legion to assist her in locating her husband, Arthur Van Fleet, formerly a member of the Fourth H. M. O. R. S. He was last heard from in Milwaukee, Wis.

Anyone having information relative to the whereabouts of Bergen W. Harmon, who escaped from the Neuro-psychiatric hospital at Mendota, Wis., about January 2, is requested to communicate with J. B. Harmon at 530 Seventh avenue East, Ashland, Wis. Bergen W. Harmon is twenty-six years old, about five feet six inches in height; weight about 140 pounds; has light complexion and light hair. He served with the Three Hundred and Eighteenth Engineers, Medical detachment.

Joseph Toahey, 448 Minerva street, Indianapolis, Ind., is trying to locate Private Alick Burke, who enlisted in the Canadian army at Calgary on November 2, 1917. He served in England and France and was discharged at Calgary on May 26, 1919. Burke was born in County Galway, Ireland, March 17, 1896. Address given by him at date of discharge was Spokane, Wash., or Richelieu hotel, Ottawa, Ontario.

Can anyone furnish information as to the present whereabouts of George C. Bussing; age thirty-four; height six feet; weight, 175 pounds; dark brown and gray mixed hair, formerly a major in the One Hundred and Fifty-seventh Depot Brigade and instructor of the General Officers' Training school, Camp Lee, Virginia? Communicate with the National Rehabilitation committee of the American Legion, Indianapolis, Ind.

IN HOME STRAWBERRY PATCH

Fruit Often Overlooked Because of Previous Failure or Selection of Wrong Soil.

It is very difficult to find anyone who does not like nice fresh strawberries and even in fairly large quantities. At the same time how many have all they want? An average sized family of five can comfortably consume five quarts daily. Figure on the home patch furnishing them for 20 days which as a rule would cost 35 cents or more per quart. That would mean $85 for strawberries in one season to say nothing of the surplus that could be sold or preserved in some form. Very few families buy $35 worth of berries in one season, so it naturally appears that the only solution is to have a home patch.

There are several reasons why we do not have more home patches, chiefly among which are:

1. Some previous failure due to improper selection of soil, wrong variety or poor culture.

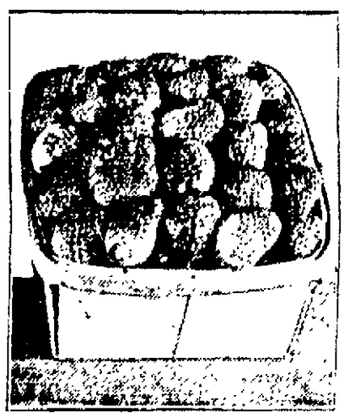
2. Simply neglected putting out a patch.

Sometimes people think that a rich soil is necessary and proceed to manure the soil very heavily. This is a mistake as frequently an excessive amount of manure, in decomposing, may cause the plants to rot. Again rich soil stimulates an excessive plant growth at the expense of fruit production and also where plants have made a heavy tender growth of plant early in the spring they are more apt to suffer from drought when dry weather sets in.

Select a good clay loam soil, capable of retaining moisture and of only medium fertility. It is surprising to see some of the successful strawberry patches in the Ozarks, where from a superficial observation it would seem that the plants are growing in a mass of small rocks.

Select a perfect variety, that is, one which does not require another variety to furnish the pollen, generally termed a variety to fertilize the imperfect variety. The Klondike and Aroma are good standard varieties and each one is a perfect variety.

Set your home strawberry patch in late February or March. Mark off your rows at least three feet apart and set plants two feet apart in the row.



Quart Box of "Fancy" Strawberries.

Keep the roots moist. Make the opening plenty large and deep enough so the roots may be spread out and not doubled up. Set the plants to the crown, but be sure not to cover up the terminal bud.

Keep the plants cultivated from the time the plants are set out until the fall rains begin. The idea is to make a good growth. In case the plants try to bear the first spring, that is, the same spring they are set, pinch the blossoms off and throw that nourishment into plant production.

As the runners start, train them in the direction of the row and in this way a solid mat in the direction of the row will be formed by the end of the growing season. This system of training will establish what is known as the matted row system which is best adapted to Oklahoma conditions.

Secure two hundred plants of one of the above named varieties, set them out in March in a clay loam soil, cultivate well and have plenty of strawberries for the berry season of 1924.—D. C. Mooring, Extension Horticulturist, Oklahoma A. & M. College.

BIG IMPORTANCE OF SPRAYS

Demonstrations by Extension Workers Have Resulted in Many Orchards Being Treated.

Demonstrations by extension workers in the methods and importance of spraying fruit trees have resulted in farm orchards being sprayed on over 37,000 farms in 1921 according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture.

NATIONAL FORESTRY POLICY

NO CHANGES AT KINGSTON POINT

The Kingston Consolidated Railroad Company is contemplating no changes at Kingston Point Park this season. The park will open for the season on Decoration Day, as usual, with about the same concessions in operation as last season.

At the present time the trolley road is maintaining a one-man car service between Abruyn street and Kingston Point, and it will be continued in operation until traffic begins to pick up. It is likely that regular trolley service will not be inaugurated before the Day Line season opens on May 12.

FLEISCHMANNS CRESCENTS PLAY PHOENICIA SATURDAY

Another good attraction has been scheduled for this Saturday evening at the Shandegnon Hall, Allaben when the Phoenicia Regulars meet the Fleischmanns Crescents. This will be the first time these teams have met this season and owing to the good-natured rivalry existing between them an interesting contest is anticipated. Referee Cassidy will call play promptly at 8:30 o'clock and after the game there will be a dance with music by the Imperial orchestra of this city.

FIND SKULL OF OLDEST OF MEN

Remains of Human Being Who Lived Millions of Years Ago.

RELIC OF TERTIARY PERIOD

Fossilized Human Skull Found in Patagonia Said to Antedate by Hundreds of Thousands of Years Any Human Relic Thus Far Discovered—Remains of Civilization Probably Earlier Than That of the Peruvian Incas Found in Santa Cruz.

A fossilized human skull, believed to be of the tertiary geological period, has been unearthed in Patagonia. News of the find was brought to Buenos Aires by Dr. J. G. Wolfe. If it proves authentic, it will antedate by hundreds of thousands of years any human relic thus far discovered.

Doctor Wolfe declared that the fossilization was that of tertiary sandstone, and that there was no doubt it was formerly the skull of a human being, not an accidental formation.

The lower jaw is missing, but otherwise the skull is almost perfect. The eye sockets and—what is still more convincing—the sockets of the teeth in the upper jaw are clearly defined. The cranium is long and oval and the forehead extremely low and sloping. Doctor Wolfe found the skull in the possession of a white settler.

Finds Early Civilization.

The scientist also announced the discovery of ruins of an ancient fortified town in the heretofore unexplored region north of Lake Cardell, in the territory of Santa Cruz, which he believes to be remnants of a civilization probably earlier than that of the Peruvian Incas.

Sections of walls 45 feet in height, built of blocks each of three cubic feet, cut out of basalt, are still standing.

Doctor Wolfe said the fact that the walls contained arches indicated their builders had reached a comparatively high state of civilization and intellectual attainment. The walls were also carved with strange inscriptions differing from the Aztec, Inca, or the Chibcha in Colombia. He noted one carving in which appeared the representation of an animal resembling the extinct glyptodon. He roughly estimated the age of the ruins at from 2,000 to 3,000 years, but excavations might more definitely determine their age.

Lived Millions of Years Ago.

"The fossilized skull is, of course, that of a man who lived some millions of years ago," said Doctor Wolfe. "The people who lived in the fortified town were comparatively moderns, reckoned by the age of the human race."

POULTRY MEETING HERE ON FRIDAY

The poultry committeemen of the Farm Bureau are to hold a meeting at the court house on Friday, March 30th, at 2 o'clock for the purpose of making out the county program of poultry improvement work for Ulster county.

Prof. L. M. Hurd of the State College of Agriculture will meet with the committeemen and will aid them in laying out their work for the coming season. Many of the poultrymen are hoping that the result of the conference will be the employment of an experienced poultryman to cull the poultry flocks for the interested men, the latter part of the coming summer. Another feature of the conference will probably be the arrangements for a county-wide poultry tour under the leadership of the Farm Bureau.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman

New York, March 29.—Fractional advances were made at the opening of the stock market today. U. S. Steel was up ½ to 107½, while Crucible was unchanged at 81. Vanadium Steel rose ⅝ to 42 and Baldwin Locomotive ¼ to 139½. Anaconda advanced ¼ to 50⅝, while Inspiration Copper yielded ¼ to 39½. Motor stocks opened firm. Studebaker moved up ⅝ to 124 and Maxwell Motor A, ⅜ to 58¾. Marland Oil improved ⅝ to 55⅞. Standard Oil of California was up ½ to 56¼. Famous Players rose ½ to 89.

Moderate buying of leading issues resulted in higher prices during the forenoon. U. S. Steel rose over 1 point to 108¼. Republic Steel advanced 1 point to 63¼. Baldwin Locomotive rose fractionally to 140 and American Locomotive advanced 1 point to 134½. Copper stocks were neglected. The railroads displayed heaviness, Northern Pacific at 76 and Union Pacific at 139¾ were about 1 point lower. American Ice jumped 2½ points to 109½.

After a period of dullness, professionals took the short side of the market, selling stocks freely in most sections. Many stocks yielded from 1 to 2 points, but quickly rallied again.

News of Interest to Members of Fraternal Societies.

Clinton Commandery, No. 16, P. O. S. of A. held a very interesting meeting in their rooms, Pythian Hall, corner of Broadway and Thomas street, Tuesday evening, March 27. Officers were elected and installed. District Commander W. L. Brower of Brooklyn, installed the newly elected officers, and several candidates were initiated. A committee was appointed make all necessary arrangements for Decoration Day exercises, to be held at the grave of Governor Clinton on Main street. At the next meeting of the commandery another class of candidates will be initiated. In the near future a uniformed battalion will visit Kingston and initiate the class of candidates for Clinton Commandery. Commander Buley will have a fine uniformed division of the commandery in Kingston; a good military man will be elected captain to drill them. There are a number of World War veterans in the Patriotic Order Sons of America in this city.

Predicts Earth's Cold Future.

Professors and weather prophets are fond of predicting great future changes in climatic conditions on our earth. As a rule they wisely refrain from precise particulars as to when these changes will take place. Maj. R. A. Marriott has been more definite. Working on the late General Drayson's theory of a big change in the inclination of the earth's axis, Major Marriott tells us that for the next four centuries the winters will grow progressively warmer, until about A. D. 2295 the difference between summer and winter will be least. Subsequently, however, the earth will get colder and colder every year, and instead of the tropical temperatures which some predict, another glacial epoch is promised by Major Marriott, the maximum severity of which will be felt by the human race—if any are left on the earth—in A. D. 15839.

LIVE STOCK NEWS

BETTER CRATES ARE NEEDED

Many Breeding Animals Used in Improving Herds and Flocks Are Not Properly Handled.

Very many of the breeding animals used in improving herds and flocks are shipped from place to place in crates. Good crates are easy to handle, reduce shipping costs, and save heavy losses.

Because shipping is often a source of much loss and great annoyance, an attempt has been made by the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, the Forest Products laboratory and the Wisconsin Live Stock Breeders' association, to establish a standard type of live-stock crate that can be easily and cheaply built. Practical tests have been made and in every case these standard crates withstood the treatment encountered in actual shipping operations.

"Better Shipping Crates for Live Stock," a free circular issued by the College of Agriculture, Madison, not only tells of the trials and tests but also suggests how efficient crates may be made.

Crates have been made for three classes of live stock—cattle, sheep and hogs. The cattle crate will comfortably accommodate mature cows of all breeds of dairy cattle. The same proportions may be used in building a larger crate to accommodate animals of the beef breeds. Similarly, a smaller crate may be built on the same lines in which to ship animals of the smaller dairy breeds.

The sheep crate is best made in three sizes, designated as lamb, sheep and buck. It is of prime importance that the crate fit the animal.

Hogs, like sheep, require different sized crates. A crate that is too small may cause many blemishes which will ruin the animal from the breeder's viewpoint. A table of the sizes of crates, based upon the size of the hog to be shipped, will aid the shipper in avoiding waste and, at the same time, provide the most comfort.

PUREBRED RAMS GAIN FAVOR

Thirty-Six Animals in One Kentucky County Where Seven Years Ago There Was One.

Thirty-six purebred rams in a county where only one was owned seven years ago, when the agricultural extension agent first began his work there, is reported to the United States Department of Agriculture as the record in Humphreys county, Tenn. Twenty farmers in the county bought purebred rams this season.

SELECT PIGS FOR BREEDERS

Important to Choose Most Thrifty and Growthy Females—Determines Size of Litter.

It is just as necessary, or even more so, to select the most thrifty and growthy sow pigs for breeders, as it is to breed them to a choice boar, for the fact that upon the thrift and capacity of the sow will depend to a large extent, not only the size of the litter, but their food during the suckling period.

PRODUCTION OF FEEDER PIPS

Business Growing Rapidly as Cholera and Other Swine Diseases Are Being Controlled.

As cholera and other diseases of swine are coming under control, the business of producing feeder pigs is growing. All feeder pigs should be young and should show good breeding. If such pigs are healthy they will make rapid gains when placed in the feed lot.

Good Mixture for Sows.

A mixture of slacked lime and salt should be kept before the sows at all times and it is also well to feed three-fourths of a pound of good quality alfalfa hay per sow daily, or one-third of a pound of tankage.

Feeding Raw Potatoes.

Raw potatoes should not be fed to live stock in too large quantities because of the solanine, which, if consumed too liberally, is apt to produce harmful effects. This crystalline compound is lost in cooking.

Start The Day With A Smile!

When breakfast is served, every member of the family waits critically for the coffee to be poured.

If it is fresh, full-bodied and rich in coffee taste and coffee smell, breakfast is bound to be a success.

And how easy it is to secure breakfast insurance—insurance of appetite satisfaction; by simply instructing your grocer to deliver you Reliance Coffee—the coffee that "tastes as good as it smells."

For years, we have imported and blended the very choicest coffee berries obtainable. Then we roast it to an exact point of taste value, after which it was steel-cut and sealed, ready for the coffee pot.

The careful pains we take to furnish coffee drinkers with the very best, under this celebrated brand, has resulted in building a demand for Reliance over a constantly-widening territory.

If you want the very best coffee—ask for Reliance, of your grocer. Wm. T. Reynolds & Co. Inc. Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Delameter-Carpenter.

Mrs. J. Dawson of Rahway, New Jersey, announces the marriage of her niece, Miss Dorothy Carpenter to Melvin A. Delameter of this city, Monday evening, March 26, 1923, at Irvington, New Jersey. The young couple are spending their honeymoon at Philadelphia and Atlantic City. They will make their home in Rahway, N. J., upon their return.

Surprise Gathering.

Last evening a surprise was given Nelson H. Souser of the Broadway fish market, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Silas S. Snyder of 6 Maiden Lane. On arriving home for his evening meal Mr. Souser was greatly surprised to find a few of his old friends there to partake with him of a good old fashioned "baked bean" dinner. After the meal, which was enjoyed by all, Mr. Souser and his guests entertained themselves by playing several exciting games of euchre. This surprise was given in honor of Mr. Souser's eighteenth birthday which was today, March 29.

Atharhacton Club.

The Atharaheton Club met on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Newton Fessenden, who had the paper for the day. "Vocational Testing" was the subject of the paper which was remarkably full of interest and valuable information. The club received its invitation to attend the open meeting of the Federation of Women's Clubs to be held in the chapel of the First Reformed Church, which will be preceded by a luncheon at the same place at 12:30 o'clock. Next Wednesday the last meeting of the Atharhacton Club will be held at the Huntington, Mrs. Eckert being the hostess. At this meeting the election of officers will take place.

PORT EWEN.

Port Ewen, March 29.—Edwin Van Wagner, who has been caretaker of the Port Ewen Cemetery, has given up the work.

USE ORNAMENTS AND CLASPS

Decorations to Be in Limelight on Clothes for Spring; Many Novelties Are Shown.

Bead ornaments and novelty clasps will be extensively shown on early spring clothes, while tinsel flowers often worked with beads are to follow them in attention of later season needs. Some stores find that many of their winter numbers are still in demand, not least of which is that group of more striking clasps showing rhinestone set in jet composition. Plain composition numbers of bright coloring are looked to as an important buckle item for spring. Odd sizes and novelty carvings add to their distinctiveness.

Japanese colorings on black, because they are so decorative, are being offered in new designs that are proving popular. One of the new ornaments is decidedly Egyptian in its appearance being composed of a red scarab-like ornament from which a heavy chaplet fringe hangs. The fringe alternates large red beads with old gold filigree tablets that lend an interesting appearance.

Ring ornaments of tinsel braid with bright centers of colored wooden beads combine delicate and graceful curves with radical colors and in this way fit themselves admirably for use on silk frocks or suits.

Narrow bead braiding is another means of using beads as a decoration that has proved highly effective These come in a wide selection of varying widths, colors and designs.

THE USE OF PRINTED SILKS

Some Claim Sudden Popularity Spells Fate—Others Contend No Rival Is in Sight.

There is considerable controversy at the present time regarding silks, states a fashion writer in the New York Tribune. Some contend that printed silks have met their fate by their too sudden popularity, while others hold they will meet no rival in the coming spring and summer. Certain patterns have been too widely taken up to be considered distinctive, it is true, but the manufacturer of the present day is advanced enough to realize this and is continually producing new designs and colorings So varied are the patterns that it would be difficult to match certain fabrics were one to try. The old-time manufacturer was not as far sighted as the one today. He would, upon the slightest prediction that a certain silk was to become "common," as it were, almost give up hope of its continued success, and through his fear of its not being successful it would become almost extinct.

The use of high colored prints in crepe marocain, crepe de chine, radium, foulard, tussah and similar silks is a vogue stronger than a great many of us realize. There are Persian and cashmere prints, designs that imitate the patterns of laces, designs inspired by India, Hindoo and China, as well as batik designs. Also silks patterned in squares and stripes and border effects. Most effective are Persian designs in square effects and allover pebbled patterns which resemble warp printing.

An Oversight.

Daughter—How do you like my new evening gown, father?

Father—My dear girl; you surely aren't going out with half of your back exposed?

Daughter (looking in mirror)—Oh, it's that stupid dressmaker's fault; she forgot to cut off the other half!

TAN AND GRAY FOR HOSIERY

Heavy Silks Promise to Have Good Demand, Although Sheerer Stockings to Hold Lead.

The sheerer the better seems to be the word on hosiery for spring though heavy silks also will find a good demand. While there is some doubt about the color trend, it would seem that the vogue for tan and gray in spring fabrics will be influential in guiding demand for hosiery colors along this line. The lighter shades will be most acceptable in tan. In gray, lighter shades will be best for evening and semi-formal wear, and darker shades for street wear. Gunmetal bronze and similar colors are for those who want particularly sheer effects. Cordovan, African brown and other dark brown shades will be well represented.—Dry Goods Economist.

Had Money Enough.

Twenty years ago or so there used to be a story of a negro boy who refused to carry a grip uptown for a traveling salesman. "Give you a quarter," offered the salesman. "I got a quarter, boss." The same little darky, now grown, was encountered by a Kansas City man on a dark street the other night. As there was no one about, the Kansas City man shied to the edge of the sidewalk, giving the darky plenty of room. "Nev' mind, mister," the darky assured him. "I ain't gonna hold you up. I got as much money as you have."

Two Ways to Retain Job.

It was Mabel's first office job. She was just out of business school and, besides being inexperienced, really was not very efficient in dictation and typewriting. Clara, whose desk was next to Mabel's, watched proceedings and saw that Mabel wasn't getting along very well. One day she took Mabel out to lunch and gave her some expert advice. "Mabel, honey," said Clara, "you ain't quite up to snuff on your job. Now, if you was real pretty—well, I tell you, if you want to hold your job you either gotta do some fall practicing on the typewriter or you gotta go to a good beauty parlor."

Odd Beliefs Concerning Cats.

From the earliest times, cats have given rise to many queer superstitions and beliefs. They have frequently been regarded as supernatural animals. The chariot of the mythical Freyja was drawn by cats, and Holda was supposed to have a bodyguard of maidens mounted on cats. The domestic cat has been regarded for hundreds of years as a weather prophet. Sailors are very superstitious regarding cats. To throw a cat overboard means an invitation to bad weather, and when a ship's cat is frisky, heavy gales are foretold.

As She Understood It.

A colored couple was brought before the magistrate charged with quarreling. "I fear that you two are poorly mated," remarked his honor; then, turning to the man, "Your wife seems to be much younger than you—May married to December, as it were." "Ah doan't know what yo' honor means by sayin' May married to December," put in the woman. "If youall goin' to talk dat way it seems mo' like a case of Labor day bein' married to de day of rest."

2,000,000 FOR EASTER FLOWERS

Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 29.—The United States will spend about two million dollars on Easter flowers this year.

This was the opinion today of Washington florists who declared demand for Easter posies is the greatest in history. Prices of lilies, roses and other favorite Easter flowers, are approximately the same as last year, with the crop adequate to supply the market.

A couple of hundred thousand dollars should cover the national capital flower bill.

It was declared at the department of commerce that several shiploads of Easter lilies have been imported from Bermuda, famous also for its onion sprouts. Practically all lilies grown in this country are from bulbs imported from Bermuda where the lily was discovered as a commercial product by a Philadelphia woman in 1875. Most of the lilies cultivated in the United States are grown under glass. Department of commerce experts declared the lily growing industry could be developed as a big business in the south.

SALVATION ARMY AND ITS WORK

Captain Newton of Local Station Addressed Hi-Y Club Wednesday Evening—Results in Basketball Games.

The Hi-Y Club heard about the Salvation Army at its meeting Wednesday night, when Captain Newton of the local station addressed the boys. This organization was founded in 1865, in the city of London, by William Booth, a former worker for the Methodist Church. He felt a calling to go out and spread the gospel of Christ among the lower classes. The church board would not consent to his bringing these people into their churches, so he severed relations with this organized body and went out on the street with the purpose of converting many to the faith of Christianity. The people whose lives he really made over were sent by him to the various churches, but they were permitted only in the rear of the church, and had to use the back door for entrance. He continued his work, however, and the organization continually grew, until fifty-eight years later a convention of the officers was held. Previously the organization had been called the Christian Mission. At the convention it was proposed that the name be changed. The Volunteer Army was first thought of, and then finally the name of Salvation Army was decided upon. The organization of today is one that is given little publicity. Its work is carried on in the dark, really, as far as the public is concerned. The biggest work is done among the poorest of people, those whom society has put down for outcasts. The pride of the Army is in helping as Christ helped, aiding those whom others have refused to help, lending a helping hand, giving a little comfort to those who have fallen by the wayside. There are many incidents, some of which Mr. Newton told the members of the Hi-Y, where the person helped has been just on the verge of giving up, calling his or her life a failure, when the Army has stepped in and given the help needed, guiding the fallen one back to the road of light. There are many lives that have been saved by the organization. The speaker told of several cases in this city during the past winter where the lives of infants were saved by the work of the Salvation Army, who came to the rescue just in time. The plan of the Army is to serve humanity, to bring the gospel of Christ to those who know little or nothing of it, who have not felt its true worth or kindliness, and to finally bring these people back to Him whose example the Salvation Army is following out.

After the talk the discussion class was held under Mr. Hall as leader, and then the basketball games, the results of which are as follows:

Gould Unchanged.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Excuse for Ovation.

An old Boston Red Sox pitcher says the poorest excuse for an ovation he ever witnessed was at Boston ten or twelve years ago when he was with the Cubs.

The Red Sox had lost 16 straight games, and in the seventeenth battle the score was a tie the last of the ninth. They had a runner on third with two out.

"Our batter hit the punkiest single you could ever imagine," he said. "It was a weak effort, the ball taking a slow hop to one side of the shortstop as it struck a piece of gravel, and the man scored from third.

"The crowd, pouring out, grabbed the batter, hoisted him on its shoulders and carried him around the field. The ovation was laughable, but showed clearly enough how the crowd could be worked up after a losing streak."

BABE RUTH REALIZES HE MUST MAKE GOOD

Says Baseball Player Must Keep in Condition.

Home-Run King Has Been Doing Much Thinking During Winter and Has Made Up Mind to Sit Tight and Play Ball.

"I've gotta make good," said Babe Ruth to the correspondents who made the journey to Hot Springs with him. "And I'll make good or break a leg, trying," he continued. "The only way a ball player can make sure of getting all that is coming to him is to keep himself in condition, try his darnedest to do whatever he is expected to do and make himself independent of the game in a financial sense. He's gotta do the latter or he'll be at the owners' mercy as long as he plays the game.

"Now, don't get me wrong. The Yankees have been mighty good to me and I expect they will be as long as I remain with the New York club. But sooner or later I'm bound to slip and be traded or sold to some other club. Then I'm going to be in a tough position if I have to take whatever they feel like giving me. I've been doing a lotta thinking along these lines down on the farm this winter and I've made up my mind that I'm going to be sitting tight to make my play good if ever I have to threaten to 'retire to the farm.'"

To this end, the Babe is making extensive improvements on the old homestead, which when completed will make it one of the show places of New England. He intends to get him four or five mules, a tractor and upwards of a hundred head of thoroughbred dairy cattle, and make his everlasting fortune supplying the city of Boston with milk and butter. He is also reading up on chickens with the idea of using some of his 164 acres as a poultry ranch.

"When I have my dairy and chicken projects in smooth working order and my 120 apple trees bearing I'll be able to leave the old national pastime without regretting it," Babe said.

STATZ SAVES CUBS $10,000

Failure to Keep Up His Batting Average in Last Few Games Proved to Be Profitable.

Failure of Arnold Statz, star outfielder of the Chicago Cubs, to keep up his batting in the last four games of the 1922 season, saved his club $10,000. The Chicago club had agreed to pay the Los Angeles club, of the Pacific Coast league, this amount, in addition to the cash and players already given for Statz, if the star should finish the season with a batting average of .300 or better. Statz knew nothing of this agreement.

Statz finished the season with an average of .297. Four days before the season closed the little outfield star was traveling along with a mark of .301. In his last four games he made only three hits in 16 times at bat.

EASTER MUSIC AT TRINITY M. E. CHURCH

Unusually attractive will be the musical programs rendered in commemoration of Easter at the Trinity M. E. Church on Sunday.

At the morning service the choir will sing one of the most beautiful of Easter anthems, "Alleluia to the King" by C. E. Clemens.

Mrs. Roy Wood, whose rich soprano voice has always pleased music lovers, will render, "As It Began to Dawn," by Harker.

Miss Ethel Mauterstock, organist and director of the choir, will play three organ numbers at the beginning of the evening service. The cantata "Immortality," by Stults, will be rendered by the large chorus choir which has received careful training and has proved its ability by its former artists and musicianly renderings.

Herman LaTour, tenor, will be one of the assisting artists and it will be a delight to hear his voice in this beautiful "Sermon in Song."

Apt Description.

The children of the neighborhood like to congregate at Esther's home because her mother and father are interested in children's affairs and make it exceedingly pleasant for them. One day on her return from there Dot remarked: "I like to play there 'cause it isn't a mother and father house—it's a little girl's house."

Emulation.

Great men, taken up in any way, are profitable company. We cannot look, however imperfectly, upon a great man, without gaining something by him. . . . No nobler feeling than this of admiration for one higher than himself dwells in the breast of man.—Carlyle.

Chaucer the Forerunner.

Chaucer was the first who made the love of nature a distinct element in our poetry. He was the first who, in spending the whole day gazing alone on the daisy, set going that lonely delight in natural scenery which is so special a mark of our later poets.—Stopford Brooke.

SCHOOL 2 EASILY BEATS SCHOOL 8

School 2 scored a decided victory over School 8 Tuesday afternoon in a game of basketball played on the School 2 court. The first half was a very one-sided affair, School 2 holding its opponents scoreless, while it ran up 18 points. In the second half, the losers made two fields and the same number of fouls, while the winners scored 30 points. Van Etten did most of the scoring for the winners, caging seven from the floor and one from the foul line. Giles aided his team to victory by his good passwork. The score:

ST. MARY'S JUNIOR TEAM UNDEFEATED

Finished Season Wednesday Night By Defeating Company E—Has Late Start But Never Suffers Defeat.

St. Mary's Junior Holy Name basketball team wound up a very successful season Wednesday evening by defeating the Company E quintet by a tally of 29 to 12. Don Murphy and John Cashin, whose work during the season was very effective, were the big scorers with eleven points each. Melville did the best work for the soldier boys, scoring seven points.

St. Mary's team has met junior squads of this season and never suffered a defeat. Basketball at St. Mary's hall did not get going until late in the season and the team's schedule of games was confined to local quintets. Without suffering a setback in its games played St. Mary's team puts in a claim for the junior championship of the city.

The score:

SCHERMERHORN ENJOYS LIFE AT ST. PETERSBURGH

St. Petersburgh, Fla., March 24.
Editor, The Freeman:

We are enjoying our stay in St. Petersburgh very much. The climate has been all that could be desired. There have been some big fish caught off the Municipal Pier, several Jew fish that weighed about five hundred pounds each; also a number of sharks. One weighed in the neighborhood of six hundred pounds, 11½ feet long. They are having now their annual carnival. The floral parade was very beautiful and the fire works on the water front in the evening were very fine. Leave the 29th for Miami by automobile, a distance of four hundred and eighty-four miles. Expect to stay there some time and return home latter part of April.

MELVIN J. SCHERMERHORN.

K. H. S. TEAMS PLAY GAMES FRIDAY NIGHT

The Varsity basketball team of the high school will play an exhibition game with the Triangles this Friday night. Most of the players on the Triangles are former high school students, so this game is always looked forward to with much pleasure, to see the former and present stars having it out. In addition to this game there will be one between the local seconds and the Ellenville Midgets. The first game is scheduled for 7:00, the other following immediately after. After the games there will be dancing.

Thought for the Day.

Some people get pleasure even out of disaster, if only they can say, "I told you so!"

The Author of "Ulysses."

It has been maintained by a recent critic of Swift that the caricature of humanity in Gulliver was suggested by Swift's observation of the "Wild Irish." Swift, however, bore the Teagues of his time no ill will; but Mr. Joyce is so minutely personal in his mockery that the doubt arises whether his original intention—to catch in a word of art the whole phantasmagoria of a day of life in Dublin—has not been prejudiced by something short of good humor. Thus A. E. passes by, and Mr. Joyce sets us all cachinnating. It is extremely well done, and we cannot help joining in, but it is not—shall I say—very high class. I except all that relates to Bloom in this epic work. In the philosophic Bloom Mr. Joyce has added a new character to that company of real imaginary personalities whom we know better than our nearest acquaintances, perhaps better than ourselves.—John Eglington, in the Dial.

This Plant a Weather Prophet.

The abrus or earthquake plant is a curious plant which grows wild in Cuba and India. Claims are made for it that it is a real prophet. The first man who made a study of the claims of the plant as a weather prophet was Baron Nowack, an Austrian, whose success in predicting a thunder storm so caught the imagination of the king of England that he is said to have invited Nowack to London to broadcast the plant—with what result history seems to have left unrecorded. It is said that when an earthquake is about to be born the abrus changes color, in company with the appearance of a spot on the sun. At any rate, the natives of Cuba and India frequently consult this oracle.

"Ye're Nae Smith."

The late Sir James T. Naesmyth of Posso, Peebleshire, has just been succeeded in the title by his nephew, Mr. Douglas Naesmyth. An interesting story is told of how this very old family got its name. In the reign of James III of Scotland an ancestor, pursued by the Douglas partisans, sought refuge in a smithy, disguised as a hammerman. The Douglas followers suspected the man, who in his agitation struck a false blow, when one of the Douglas men rushed at him calling out, "Ye're nae smith."

Made "Wise" Man Look Foolish.

A bold and self-assertive individual bounced into a shaving saloon and, catching sight of an owl in a corner of the room exclaimed, with scorn, "Who stuffed that owl?" Then the critic proceeded to smite hip and thigh the taxidermist who had stuffed the owl; the owl was wrong here, there and everywhere. During the whole of this outburst the barber kept on shaving. At the end, when the stranger was out of breath with his vehement criticism, the owl stepped from the perch and planted itself somewhere else.

Origin of "Doughboy."

The word "doughboy" is a slang military term applied to an infantryman in the United States army. The word dates from the Civil war when army wit was aroused by the large globular brass buttons on infantry uniforms. Someone—he must have been a sailor—dubbed the buttons "doughboys" because they reminded him of the boiled dumplings of raised dough that are so frequently served in ships' messes and are known to all sailors as "doughboys."
